M. J. MITCHELL, WHOSE JAIL TERM WAS BEGUN TO-DAY

From a snapshot taken during his trial.

MITCHELL FAINTS AT GATES OF JAIL

Convicted City Grafter Overcome as He Enters Deer Island to Serve Term of One Year—Taken Secretly to Prison.

Michael J. Mitchell, purchasing agent for the city of Boston when John F. Fitzgerald was Mayor, collapsed to-day at Deer Island when he was taken there with Thomas F. Maher, flagstone contractor, each to serve a year in the House of Correction for conspiracy to defraud the city out of about $14,000 in a flagstone contract.

Mitchell, who had burst into tears and wept like a child following the sentence yesterday in the county courthouse, and who had passed a restless night in Charles Street Jail, was overcome when the grim walls of the prison loomed before him. He fell in a faint, according to information which reached his friends in Boston, and it was necessary to take him to the hospital.

Maher bore the trying ordeal with greater fortitude, so far as outward appearances went. His friends declared that he would not show it even when suffering most.

Shielded from Public.

Carefully guarded from public view, the two men were removed in a covered vehicle from Charles street jail at 7:30 o'clock to the Monitor at the South Ferry, the boat which plies between this city and the penal institutions.

The removal of the men at such an early hour from the prison where they had spent the night was done in order to circumvent any who might be attracted by curiosity to see the convicted prisoners. As soon as the men were taken on board, they were secreted in the vessel and no one not officially connected with the institutions was allowed to go on board.

All of the boat officials denied emphatically that Mitchell and Maher were on the vessel just before it left for its destination, 9:30 o'clock. At Deer Island it was admitted later that the two men had reached there.

Judge's Charge a Sensation.

Much speculation was caused in political and business circles to-day by the emphatic statement of Judge Sanderson in sentencing Mitchell and Maher, in which he said that others not charged with any crime were considered guiltier by members of the jury than Mitchell.

This is Judge Sanderson's suggestive statement:

"In the case of Mitchell I ought to say that the foreman of the jury came to me after the verdict and said substantially that while there was no doubt that both defendants were guilty of the offence charged, they did not think Mitchell was so deep in the matter as somebody else who was not charged, that there was more guilt attaching to others in this connection than to Mitchell."

Not only has the judge sitting at the SOUTH SIDE PARK, Chicago, Ill., July 10.—Red Sox and White Sox were prepared for a second desperate battle this afternoon. The White Sox were out for revenge, while the "Speed Boys" were fighting hard to win. Meanwhile the Tigers and Athletics were battling for the lead in Detroit.

The "Speed Boys" certainly are causing a furor in Chicago this trip. Instead of going to the downtown hotel usually patronized by all the American League clubs the Boston fellows are putting up at the Chicago Beach, one of the exclusive hotels of the city. It is located on Lake Michigan and the athletes spent the morning in the cool water. Instead of riding to the ball park in the carryalls that usually transport the athletes, the Boston boys make the trip from the hotel in automobiles.

Wood was again the pitcher selected by Manager Fred Lake. He didn't warm up to the satisfaction of the manager yesterday, hence the substitution of Arellanes.

Jake Stahl's terrific smash for a home run was the talk of the Chicago fans today. It was the longest drive in the history of the South Side Park. It cleared a high wire netting that stands on top of the fence in right centre. The ball struck half way up the bleachers on the fly, and then it was traveling with great momentum. It was the first time that a ball was ever driven into that bleacher, either on the fly or bound.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, July 10.—With the series 2 to 0 in their favor, and more than an even chance to make it 3 to 0, Manager Bowerman's Doves lined up with the St. Louis Cardinals in the third game of the series this afternoon.

The Doves appeared more chesty before the game than they have been in many months, for their last couple of victories seem to have rejuvenated the team, and instead of going into the game expecting to receive the small end of the count, the Doves were full of ginger, and their fielding was snappy right from the start.

Acting Manager Phelps had a few things to say to his team before the game, and the Cardinals were also a great deal livelier than on the previous days they have met the Doves.

The crowd at this afternoon's game, while far from what the players deserve for their good efforts of the last couple of days, was the largest of the series. The weather was ideal for peppery playing.

'BLACKMAIL' HINT MADE IN MILITIA CASE

At the hearing to-day before a court of inquiry which is sitting on the charges against Lieutenant-Colonel Walter E. Lombard with respect to the handling of $2,500 militia funds, evidence was offered to show that Attorney Jaquith, the defendant's counsel, had written Governor Draper asserting that a letter by Adjutant-General Brigham to Lombard came within the legal definition of blackmail.

The principal time of the hearing was in considering the printing of books of instruction for the Coast Artillery Corps. Some of the books were copyrighted by Lombard, he claiming that he got them up at his own expense after the $2,500 appropriation had been expended. The prosecution contends that as an officer he had no right to do so.

General Brigham wanted all of the books for the State and asked Lombard if he had any claim on them which would prevent the State selling certain of them to the State of New Lork. Lombard objected and said his copyright was to prevent the books being copied by other States.

General Brigham testified that at a conference on May 12 an agreement was made with Lombard to turn over the cuts and drawings in the books at a certain price. Next day, he said, Lombard withdrew his offer. A memorandum on this was not admitted in evidence.

After consulting the Governor regarding Lombard's refusal, General Brigham testified that on May 22, at the direction of the Governor, he again wrote Lombard, and told him that unless he complied with the agreement he was understood to have made within a week he should order a court of inquiry to investigate Lombard's conduct.

This brought out the matter of blackmail, and Brigadier-General Pew, as president of the court, put a stop to this line of evidence.

OIL FINE MUST STAND.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 10.—The Waters-Pierce Oil Company must pay the entire costs of the Standard Oil Company ouster proceedings, according to the Supreme Court, which denied a motion to have the costs apportioned among the Standard of Indiana, the Republic and Waters-Pierce companies.

FALSE KEY THIEVES WORK IN BACK BAY

Clues which show that false key workers have been robbing suites in the Back Bay and carrying their loot off in a team have caused the police of Station 16 to put on a special detail in an effort to trap an organized gang of thieves. The latest of several breaks reported was at No. 22 Huntington avenue, an apartment house. Tenants of the first and second floors are away for the Summer, and Fred E. Allen, the janitor, reports that the two copper hot water boilers, all the brass work and faucets and lead pipe were stolen.

FIREBUG IN PLAINFIELD.

PLAINFIELD, Ct., July 10.—An incendiary fire burned the house and other buildings owned by William Gallip East of Coventry, early to-day. The loss is $4,500, partly insured.

TWICE LOSES CONTEST FOR CHILD IN DAY

ORANGE, July 10.—After allowing her husband to get possession of their baby boy by means of a ruse, Mrs. Charles Emery of this town pursued him in a stranger's carriage, then in an auto and finally on foot, caught him, got the boy back and finally lost the baby and husband again, all in the space of one afternoon. Mr. Emery now has the baby. The wife is wondering to-day what she can do to regain possession of the infant.

Emery is living in Monroe, N. H. His wife was formerly Miss Keyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Keyes, who lives on Main street, a mile from Orange Square.

Five months ago Mrs. Emery came back to her parents' home, bringing her infant son, William, then a year old. Yesterday Emery came down from New Hampshire, called at the Keyes home and asked his wife if he could see the baby alone.

Mrs. Emery says:

"I thoughtlessly allowed Mr. Emery to go into the front room alone with the baby. Fifteen minutes later, hearing no sound from the room, I went in. Mr. Emery and baby were gone. I ran outdoors. Neighbors told me he had taken the baby aboard a car for Orange square. Just then a stranger drove along in a carriage. I stopped him, asked for a ride, told him I was in a hurry and was driven rapidly toward town.

"Half a mile along I got out at the Grout Auto Garage, hired an auto and was motored the rest of the way to town. At Orange square I saw Mr. Emery getting off the trolley with the baby. I ran into the office of Clerk of Court Israel Newton. He said he had no authority to get the baby for me. Then I ran over to the office of Deputy Sheriff E. C. Fowler who told me the same. Then I found a lawyer who said he could not get baby for me.

"In desperation I ran over to where Mr. Emery was still standing with the baby. Mr. Emery, carrying baby, ran as I came up. Followed by me and a constantly gathered crowd he fled down East Main street for half a mile till I caught up with him.

"He agreed to return home with me and bring the baby. He did so, but later in the day, he slipped out the back way with baby and I haven't seen him since. I don't know what I shall do."

NOTE BROKER HELD ON LARCENY CHARGE

Charged with the larceny of three notes valued at $700, Michael C. Hayes, fifty-five, a note broker, living at No. 1,589 Beacon street, Brookline, was arrested to-day by Inspectors Armstrong and McGarr of Boston, assisted by Patrolman Rutherford of Brookline. In the Municipal Court Judge Ely held Hayes in $1,000 for a hearing on July 15. The notes were the property of James P. Murphy of Linden street, Watertown, who alleges that he took them to Hayes for discounting and never received them back.

MAYOR BROWN OUSTS LOWELL POLICE BOARD

LOWELL, July 10.—Mayor George H. Brown this afternoon removed from office Police Commissioners Frank K. Stearns, Thomas P. Boulger and Charles H. H[illegible]son, finding them guilty of alleged neglect of duty and malfeasance. The commissioners will fight the decision.

The commissioners were Brown's superior officers when he was a patrolman. He preferred the charges against them.

The finding takes up sixty-four typewritten pages. It reports the conditions in the city as unsatisfactory, especially Sunday selling of liquor by hotels.

The commissioners will petition for a review of the evidence. William H. Bent, counsel for Stearns, declares the decision will never stand in court.

CADETS OFF FOR COHASSET CAMP

Company C, First Corps of Cadets, left the South station this afternoon in a special car for Scituate. The company will be the guest to-day and to-morrow of First Lieutenant Freeman Hinckley at the latter's place in Cohasset. Camp will be pitched on Lieutenant Hinckley's estate, and the program includes guard mounting and field manoeuvres, etc., on Turkey Hill. Camp will be broken to-morrow afternoon, when the company will return home by boat from Pemberton.

INCREASE HOURS ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

NEW HAVEN, July 10.—An increase of hours in the mechanical departments of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, effective next week, is announced. This will benefit boilermakers, machinists and the general repair men in shops here and at Readville, Mass. The schedule for a considerable period has been four days a week. The new schedule gives the men six days a week.

HAT WORKERS WIN WAGE STRIKE

The striking finishers employed by Williamson & Sleeper, manufacturers of ladies' and children's straw and felt hats, out since Tuesday resisting an attempt on the part of the firm to reduce wages 30 per cent., will return to work Monday at the old rate of wages, a settlement of the strike being effected this afternoon with a complete victory for the men when the firm withdrew its previous notice of a cut-down.

NINE MALDEN HOUSES BURN; LOSS $35,000

Three business and tenement blocks and four stores and two dwelling houses were burned out in a fierce fire which started in the Suffolk square section of Malden this afternoon and threatened for a time to sweep through the district. A general alarm was rung in and the fire was checked after it had done fully $35,000 damage. The entire neighborhood, mainly occupied by Hebrews, was panic-stricken. Eight families, comprising forty people, were forced to flee from their dwellings, and other families in the line of the fire prepared to get out till they were assured the fire was under control.

Started in Rubbish Heap.

The fire started at 1:20 in a rubbish barrel in the rear of the big three-story wooden block at the corner of Bryant and Cross streets. The fire worked two ways at once.

It went through the three-story corner block like a flash. On the first floor was the grocery of A. Missenbaum. The second and third floors were occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Pastine and four children.

The Pastine block on Bryant street, in the rear of the corner block, was quickly burned out. It was a two-story structure. On the ground floor were A. Wolinsky's shoe store and P. Maccrolisky's millinery store.

The second floor was taken up by Pastine Hall.

Working through the corner store, the fire ignited th ethree-story wooden block No. 322 Cross street and burned it out. On the street floor were S. Partikoff's gas-fitting shop and M. Mobelfsky's grocery. On the second an dthird floors were the following families: M. Mobelfsky, wife and seven children; Joe Cohen, wife and six children; J. Cohen, wife and three children, and Joe Shingel, wife and four children.

Alarm Box Overheated.

The following houses and stores were also burned out: House of Robert Lichitz at No. 326 Cross street, gas-fitting store of L. Goldman, No. 328 Cross street, dry goods store of M. Quint at No. 328 Cross street, house of Rabbi A. Rosen Mohel at No. 332 Cross street.

The fire jumped across Cross street and burned out the furniture store of A. Markowitch & Company at No. 333, and the fish market of I. Isenberg at No. 327.

The fire alarm was rung in from box No. 33, but that box was in the path of the fire, and was too hot to be touched for the second alarm for which the next nearest box was used. The third and general alarm brought out all the Malden apparatus. The fire was under control at 2 o'clock, after forty minutes of hard fighting.

HIRES LAWYER IN CAMBRIDGE TANGLE

Mayor William F. Brooks of Cambridge wants to know who is city solicitor of Cambridge. He wants to know of whom he is to ask advice in the conduct of his office as Mayor, and he also wants to know who is entitled to draw the salary paid the Mayor of Cambridge. So to-day he retained Attorney Francis J. Carney of Boston to find out if Gilbert A. A. Pevey, for seventeen years city solicitor of Cambridge, still has a right to that position, or whether former Representative James F. Aylward, who was elected two weeks ago in a riotous session of the City Council, has a right to the office.

POLICEMAN GETS PRAISE AND BLAME

That Patrolman William Groth of Newton acted wisely in entering a building the doors of which he found unlocked, but that he neglected his duty when he failed to find a boy asleep in the building, is the novel decision made by Mayor George Hutchinson this afternoon. He accordingly found the patrolman not guilty on the charge of breaking and entering, but fined him thirty days pay for neglect of duty. It was alleged Groth entered the carpenter shop of A. I. English, No. 63 Union street, Newton Centre, and took a roll of wire.

MURPHY CALLS CHARTER PLAN NO. 2 BETTER

John R. Murphy, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor against Patrick A. Collins ten years ago, and, successively, fire, water and wire commissioner under Democratic administrations, has announced that he is in favor of Plan 2 on charter revision. Mr. Murphy is regarded by many as a candidate for the mayoralty this year, though he has not yet declared himself.

In stating his position Mr. Murphy is frank in expressing his opinion of those who framed the referendum. The one issue which saves Plan 2, he says, is that it allows the voters to nominate and elect their own candidates. Mr. Murphy says.

"As between the system of convention nominations and the proposition for direct elections, I fail to see how any disinterested voter can deliberately vote to surrender his power and his vote to a political boss.

"I do not ignore the fact that the clever politicians who framed the bogus referendum sugar-coated Plan 1 and put camomile on Plan 2. I don't believe in a four-year term for Mayor, and the proposition for a recall at the end of two years, by a majority of the registered voters, is a political joke, although those who framed it do not yet know it. Moreover, I believe in a larger City Council.

"But, although I am opposed to two features of Plan 2, I favor its adoption and I favor it for two reasons:

"My first reason is that the voters, above all, must not surrender control of their own power to nominate and elect to any other power, call that power what you will—leadership or bossship.

"My second reason is my knowledge of the leaders. I have no doubt that, in the event of the passage of Plan 2, as presented to the voters, among the very first amendments to the new charter provision, as framed by the General Court and signed by the Governor, will be one reducing the term of Mayor to two years, or else the substitution of a genuine power of recall. Another amendment which will be offered and adopted, if the voters should stand by Plan 2, as they should, will be one increasing the size of the City Council.

"I believe Plan 2 should triumph, and that it will triumph. After that the defects of the plan will be corrected, and reformers and leaders will unite, I believe, in correcting them. But the people should cling to their power to nominate and elect. That they must not surrender under any pretext."

E. H. HARRIMAN GOES TO GASTEIN

VIENNA, July 10.—E. H. Harriman changed his plans yesterday, going direct from Semmering to Gastein, because Dr. Digson passed Vienna last evening en route from Carlsbad to New York. Mr. Harriman is anxious to have Dr. Digson's opinion on his improvement, and also that he may have a consultation with Professor Scuempell. Mr. Harriman decided on coming to Vienna with Professor Scuempell at a moment's notice. He left by special train for Gastein to-day. He has purchased a motor car for use at Gastein. Mr. Harriman's thriftiness in small things causes great surprise in this country.

Newhall of Chestnut Hill, [illegible]onaire clubman and international cricketer. Hoopes shot Newhall and seriously wounded him at Ambler two years ago, but Newhall refused to prosecute him. ART IN ADVERTISING.

The merchant of to-day has come to realize the increasing importance of "fascination" in advertising. In doing so he has aimed to make his advertisements artistically attractive, but at the same time to have the illustrations used therein so absolutely fetching as to be fascinating.

A most emphatic example of this modern advertising is the full page advertisement prepared for the Knotair Hosiery Company, which will adorn the back page of The American Sunday Magazine, issue of Sunday, July 18.

Every merchant who is interested in good advertising, and all progressive merchants are, should note particularly this splendid example of publicity. In addition to the attractiveness in illustration, the advertisement tells an emphatic story which should be carefully considered by every retail merchant as well as by every consumer.

SPRINGFIELD WOMAN VICTIM OF CAPTURED TEN-WIFE BIGAMIST

SPRINGFIELD, June 10.—John Madson, who made "bridegrooming" a profession, and by marrying monied women, right and left, cleaned up $30,000 in nine years, now in the clutches of the police of San Francisco, is believed to be the man who came to this city, and under the name of Christian C. Johnson married Mrs. Mary A. Wiggin-Drown on December 5, 1904.

Mrs. Drown was deserted in New York on her wedding tour, came back here, and soon after died of a broken heart.

Mrs. Drown answered Johnson's advertisement for a wife, in which he represented himself to be a wealthy ranch and orange grove owner in Los Angeles. He told of a great mansion house, where an army of servants were employed. After communicating with Mrs. Drown he came here, and the wedding was performed by the Rev. Newton Hall, pastor of the North Congregational Church. In the license he declared that it was his first marriage, that he was born in Germany and was fifty-one years old. It was the third wedding of Mrs. Drown, who was forty-eight years old.

Sold Out Her Business.

In preparation for the wedding Mrs. Drown sold out her dressmaking business, which she had conducted for years. After the wedding she and her husband started for the West. They stopped in New York, where Johnson said he had business interests. He told his wife that a check for a consignment of Western horses had gone astray and borrowed $100 from her, saying the check would be found later.

Johnson left his wife in a New York hotel, and a day later she received a message telling her to come to Buffalo and meet him. She went, but could not find him. Later she ascertained that all her trunks had been taken on West. Detectives were sent out for the man and tracers for the trunks. The man was never caught, but the trunks were found in a small Western town, rifled of all that was valuable.

From Buffalo Mrs. Drown returned to her home in Springfield, No. 26 Salem street, broken in spirit and poor in health. Soon after she reopened her dressmaking business, but her health gave out entirely. In 1906 she obtained a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

Disowned by Her Father.

Mrs. Drown's father then lived in Rome, N. Y., and she had told him of her plans to marry Johnson. Her father protested and tried to convince her that Johnson was a fraud as far as his wealth was concerned. Mrs. Drown remained obdurate, and as a result her father drew up a new will disposing of an estate of about $10,000, cutting off his daughter entirely.

According to dispatches from San Francisco, the police there have indisputable proof of Madson's guilt. They say Christian Johnson is only one of the many aliases under which he operated.

List of Victims.

Here is an incomplete list of Madson's brides and the money he parted them from:

Mrs. Mary Drown, Springfield, Mass., $1,000.

Mrs. Elizabeth N. E. Jackson of Iola, Kan., $1,400.

Mrs. Minnie Allen, St. Louis, $540.

Mrs. Alice Richardson, St. Louis, $200.

Mrs. Katherine Bauman, St. Louis, $1,000.

Mrs. Maggie E. Bloom, Hannibal, Mo., her home.

Mrs. A. Farran, Rocheport, Mo., $2,000.

Mrs. Silvia Pollard De Bonett, San Francisco, her home.

Mrs. Henrietta Leopold, San Francisco, $620.

Mrs. Jessie Tretheway, Stockton, Cal., nothing.

The specific charge against Madson is the swindling of Mrs. Leopold from whom he received $620. The prisoner denies his identity, although he admits his marriage to at least one of the ten women who claim him as husband.

LAUNCH FULTON BOAT REPLICA

NEW YORK, July 10.—The Clermont, an exact model of Robert Fulton's first steamboat which will be used in the Hudson-Fulton celebration here next Fall, was launched to-day in the presence of the Hudson Fulton Celebration Committee. Commander Stewart L. Woodford, president of the commission, made a speech and the vessel was christened by Mrs. Arthur Taylor Sutcliffe, great granddaughter of Robert Fulton. The United States steamship Wasp boomed out a sixteen gun salute during the ceremony.

The newly built Clermont is 150 feet long, eighteen feet wide, seven feet deep, and draws two feet of water.

Its sides are almost straight up and down and both ends are wedge-shaped. It will be equipped with a replica of the original engines and will make the trip up the river to Albany under its own steam. On the Clermont's prow stands the huge bell used on the original Clermont to summon the passengers who lagged at the starting time and to serve the purposes of the modern steam whistle for signalling.

2 CLERGYMEN'S NAMES FORGED

The Cambridge police inspectors are looking for a man charged with forging the names of two prominent clergymen to checks and with cashing one of the checks.

This man, the inspectors declare, ordered a half ton of coal at the office of the Carstein Coal Company, No. 735 Massachusetts avenue, and tendered a check signed by the Rev. John L. Campbell, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church. He said the name of the payee was his own. This name the police refuse to disclose. He received $10.50 in change and departed. Later the signature of Dr. Campbell was pronounced a forgery.

The same stranger offered a $12 check signed with the name of the Rev. George W. Bicknell, pastor of the First Unitarian Church of Cambridgeport, to Mahigan, the florist, at No. 10 Norfolk street, in payment for a small floral order. Mahigan declined the check, which was also said later to be a forgery.

POLICE HUNT CHECK RAISER

Photographs and a description of George C. Drouin were sent to the police all over the United States to-day by the Boston police, asking the arrest of Drouin on a charge of raising a $25 check to $2,500. Drouin was for four years a bookkeeper in the Hotel Bellevue, and on June 26 a check for $25 on the Lincoln National Bank of New York was given to him. Drouin, it is charged, raised the check, deposited the $2,500 in the Merchant's National Bank, later drew out $1,500 and disappeared.

He is thirty-six years old, five feet eight and one-half inches tall, weighs 134 pounds, dark eyes, blond hair and moustache, and wears glasses. The police description contains this:

"Marks—Tattooed red letter D below left elbow; acid marks on back of left wrist, large mole on neck below apple."

The police say he has served terms in Pennsylvania and New Jersey for similar offences.

END OF WAGE WAR IN SIGHT

A conference between representatives of the Master Plasterers' Association and Boston Plasterers' Union No. 10 is being arranged to-day by J. H. Townsend, president of the employers' association, and Edward J. McGivern, business agent of the men's union, at which time the men's request for an increase of wages from 60 to 65 cents an hour will be taken up. The conference is expected to take place at the master builders' headquarters in Devonshire street, Thursday afternoon.

Mr. McGivern says that he anticipates a peaceful adjustment of such differences as may now exist. The plasterers are organized to a man throughout Greater Boston, sixty additional members having been brought into the union during a campaign instituted a few months ago in preparation for the present demand for a raise.

Five hundred men are affected by the demand, and the vote taken at a special meeting of the union last night, favoring the wage increase, was passed without a dissenting voice.

Three hundred dollars in prize awards to be distributed in next Sunday's AMERICAN. It's possible for a family of four to earn $100.

DESPERADO'S WIDOW ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 10.—Mrs. Fred H. Mohrle, widow of "Yellow Kid" Mohrle, who shot and killed Constable Sam Young and was in turn killed by one of Young's friends, tried to commit suicide to-day. She is in the City Hospital with a bullet in her breast.

KILLED BY OWN RIFLE.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 10.—Robert Brown, fourteen, of Sargentville died at the Knox Hospital from a rifle wound accidentally inflicted by himself. As he was drawing the weapon toward him by the muzzle the hammer caught, discharging the gun, and the bullet entered the chest.

Urge Gompers to Work for Peace of Nations.

LONDON—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has been received by British workingmen with pronounced cordiality. At the dinner given in his honor by the labor members of the Commons, stress was laid upon the international solidarity of labor as a check upon the increase of armaments. Mr. Gompers was urged to give greater prominence in the propaganda of the Federation to the importance of peace between nations as a basis for the betterment of the workingman's lot. In private, Mr. Gompers asserts that, although he finds the socio-political institutions of Great Britain inferior to those of the United States, he will take back with him many noteworthy ideas.

NEW POTATOES ARE COSTLY LUXURIES

CHICAGO, July 10.—Among the luxuries on the Chicago market this year are potatoes. Five carload lots have just been sold on the tracks for from $1.10 to $1.25 a bushel. This means that the consumer will be expected to pay from forty to forty-five cents a peck for the "delicacies," or from $1.50 to $1.80 per bushel. The floods along the Kansas River are to blame for the high prices.

CITY INVADED BY LAND AND SEA FORCES

The eyes of the military and naval world are this Summer trained on the Bay State. Fully half a million dollars are being spent by the Government in a mighty war game off the Massachusetts coast and about Boston.

The operations began with the assembling of the mighty battleship fleet for war tactics off the coast, with Rockport and Provincetown as assembling points. This mighty armada, including seventeen battleships, a fleet of cruisers, eleven torpedo boats and destroyers, and four submarines, will engage in manoeuvres off Cape Cod. Their operations at sea will continue for four weeks.

The operations on land, which are entirely military and distinct from the naval practice, will take place between August 14 and 21.

Boston will be the objective point of an army of invasion of from 9,000 to 5,000 soldiers and the country between this city and New Bedford will be the battle ground of the most remarkable campaign of mimic warfare New England has ever known. Major General Leonard Wood, a Massachusetts man, and now one of the highest officers in the United States regular army, will watch the campaign.

When the campaign is over it is possible that there will be a great parade in this city of all militiamen and regulars who will take part in the war. If this happens President Taft will probably come from the "Summer White House" at Beverly to review the parade. When the campaign is over army officers will have an idea of what kind of defence could be offered if a foreign foe were to land an army on the South Shore and attempt to march to this city and capture it.

The ground to be fought over during the campaign next month is quadrangular in shape and includes Boston, Plymouth, Taunton and New Bedford. The invading army will be mobilized in New York and landed by transports in the neighborhood of New Bedford, it is understood. It will comprise regiments from Washington, D. C., Connecticut and New York. From New York there will be a brigade consisting of the famous Seventh, Twenty-second and Fourteenth Regiments, with several batteries of light artillery.

The Massachusetts militia, which will form the army of defence, will be under the command of General Pew. An army officer will accompany each army as umpire. General Wood will also judge the manoeuvres and there will be assistant umpires besides.

BIG FLEET AT PROVINCETOWN

PROVINCETOWN, July 10.—The Atlantic fleet, in command of Rear Admiral Schroeder, is in Provincetown Harbor this afternoon, ready for the battle tactics that are to last for nearly a month.

The fleet, as it lies in the harbor is a formidable armada, and consists of fourteen battleships, eight torpedo boats, three auxiliaries, the Dixie, the flagship of the torpedo flotilla, the supply ship Celtic and the admiral's dispatch boat.

One hundred picked men from the naval academy at Annapolis to-day joined the battleships, to remain on board until the conclusion of the manoeuvres.

This afternoon 1,600 jackies from the fleet roamed the streets of Provincetown on shore leave. They will have shore leave to-morrow also. On Monday the fleet sails for the drill grounds to try the battle tactics.

The operations will not be concluded until early in August, when the fleet will leave for Hampton Roads to coal ship on August 9. On August 14 the ships will return to the southern drill grounds, where two days later, target practice will be resumed.

JORDAN SEES GOOD TIMES

NEW YORK, July 10.—Eben D. Jordan of Boston, who has just arrived from Europe, says:

"From what I could discover of business conditions in the European countries through which I traveled, the outlook is very promising for a term of prosperity abroad, as well as at home.

"My principal business in Europe this year was the formation of an opera company for Boston, and my agents have secured some excellent artists. We have desired to have the company second to none in the world."

GUARDS SAVE GIRL BATHERS FROM DEATH

Two Cambridge girls narrowly escaped drowning at the Magazine street beach, Cambridge. Elvina Brunell, aged fifteen, of No. 114 Pleasant street, and May Nugent, of No. 114 Lincoln street, had been swimming but a short time and started together toward the raft, a distance of thirty feet from shore.

The former became fatigued and began to sink. She threw her arms about her companion and both went down, but were rescued by Life Guards Beucler and Barber.

ANNA BOYD COYNE DIVORCES HUSBAND

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 10.—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser to-day granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to Anna Boyd Coyne from Joseph Coyne, the well-known actor. The case was tried several months ago before Referee R. H. Travis, who recommended a divorce on evidence of Coyne's misconduct in London. Judge Morschauser refused to grant a decree without corroborative testimony, which was furnished.

ACTRESS LOST! HELP FIND HER

New York, July 10.

AMERICAN, Boston:

Sallie Fisher wanted for rehearsals here. Reported to be near Boston touring. Kindly help locate her through your paper. M. H. SINGER.

Long Acre Building.

The above telegram received to-day tells its own story—prima donna missing, manager in despair, time growing short, a trying situation, truly, for an impresario.

Not a bad idea, though, on the part of Manager Singer. He knows apparently the definition of the word "circulation." If the actress is blithely chug-chugging anywhere near Boston she is pretty sure to read or to be told about this.

Therefore, you are urgently requested to look around and call Sallie Fisher. Get that "call"—not call on or call out or call down. Just plain call, which is the stage technicality for a summons to the theatre.

FAINTS AFTER FLEEING FIRE

Eighty-year-old John Shanahan ran down four flights of stairs with a suit case and fainted from exhaustion at the street floor during a fire caused by an explosion of naphtha at No. 355 Columbus avenue, near Dartmouth street, to-day.

The explosion was in the tailor shop of Samuel Kremer on the first floor. Smoke curled up through the lodging house of Mrs. Nellie T. Healey on the upper floors. Mrs. Healey and her father, Mr. Shanahan, were on the top floor. A passer-by broke the front door glass and shouted "Fire!" Mr. Shanahan stuffed a few valuables into a suit case and started down stairs on the run and collapsed at the bottom.

The fire department extinguished the blaze after it had done $25 damage. The building is owned by Byron R. Mitchell.

MAY PUT HUGHES IN SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, July 10.—There is a strong impression in New York and Vermont that Governor Hughes will be offered the first vacancy that occurs in the Supreme Court of the United States by President Taft. The determination of President Taft to offer Governor Hughes a place on the Supreme Court bench is the immediate result of several days of association during the Lake Champlain celebration just ended. It ripened a friendship already cemented during the campaign in which President Taft was elected. Many of Hughes's friends have not abandoned him as a candidate for President, however.

MITCHELL AND MAHER JAILED

trial declared that the jurors felt there were others guilty, but the statement of District Attorney Hill in his summing up is regarded as very significant. Mr. Hill said:

I don't know whether we have got all the conspirators or not, but I know we have proved a conspiracy. I promise you that if it ever comes out that any other man or men are in this thing, whether their names are Pat, or John, or Henry, or whatever their names are, I will put them where those two defendants are.

"As to the future of the cases," said District Attorney Hill to-day, "I have nothing to say. It is a rule with me which I will not vary, not to talk of my plans on a case pending with my office or the courts."

"I'm really sorry, though, for Mitchell. And I'm glad the judge let him off easy. Not much of a lighter sentence could have been given him. Still, I'm sorry, so long as he has begun to talk and explain, that he did not do it on the witness stand at the trial."

COST MAN $50 FOR 'CREASING'

FITCHBURG, July 10.—William Mellen, a collector for one of the large beef houses, reports to the police that he lost $50 which he left in the pockets of his trousers sent to be pressed by a tailor on Day street.

Mellen told the police that he was in a hurry to have the pressing done and left the trousers in the tailor shop when he went to work. After he got to his office he said that he called up the tailor and asked him to take care of the money until he called for it. He was surprised when the proprietor informed him that he did not have the money and had not seen it. The case was reported to Inspector Flaherty and he started an investigation.

GIRL WALKS FROM TRAIN IN SLEEP

RAVENNA, Neb., July 10.—While walking in her sleep, Miss Lois Campbell, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Vice-President Campbell of the Frisco system, leaped from the rear platform of her father's private car as the train was speeding over the prairies west of Ravenna. Rendered unconscious, the girl finally recovered and succeeded in flagging a freight, on which she rode to the next station.

IS CHANDLER OF BOSTON A NEAR-HERO?

I was a hero, too.
(Sam Bernard in "Nearly a Hero.")
Ditto.
(Byron D. Chandler in real life.)

The bunch in the Adams House billiard room and about-town generally is eagerly waiting to-day for Byron D. Chandler, the "Million Dollar Kid," to run over from New York to tell 'em how he slapped 250 pounds of George J. Mackay of Los Angeles right on his large, open-work face.

Chandler slapped the man in the palm room of the Mauretania last Thursday because Mackay and others were singing a song which Chandler thought reflected on his wife, formerly Grace La Rue, the singer and dancer.

The last time Grace La Rue was in Boston in a professional way was last September, when she was at the Majestic Theatre with Sam Bernard in "Nearly a Hero."

Bernard was only a stage hero and a comic one at that, in the play, and Miss La Rue was Angeline De Vere, a queen of musical comedy. Her opening song, "My Sahara Belle," was a crackerjack, and is still being played and whistled about town.

With Real Hero Now.

From professional association with a "Near-Hero," Miss La Rue is now matrimonially associated with a real hero, according to Chandler's version of the affair on the Mauretania.

Chandler is excessively lightweight from a pugilistic sense, almost a paperweight. If he, as he says, handed George J. Mackay or anyone else weighing 250 pounds a slap on the face there must have been something heroic about it, in the opinion of Byron's friends.

Byron and his wife are in New York to-day. They will not talk of their matrimonial affairs, but they do tell about the Mauretania mix-up.

Last Thursday night, when the Mauretania was well on her record-clipping way, Chandler and his wife were seated in the palm room. Among the table parties was one composed of Mackay, the aged Duke of Sutherland, John R. Towler of St. Louis and Alfred Soualle of Paris, who is said to be a Vicomte. They were singing a song about a lady in a kimono. Chandler took the song as a hit at his wife.

"I slapped Mackay twice for singing the song," says Chandler. "He did not defend himself. He was big in appearance, but that was all."

Or Was Byron Smacked?

Other versions say that Chandler did put one over on Mackay's face, but that Mackay made Chandler apologize for himself and then made him give a second apology for his wife, who called Mackay down. Mackay is quoted as having told Chandler that if Chandler wasn't so little Mackay would have thrown him overboard.

Dispatches to-day from New York say that Mrs. Grace La Rue Chandler has harkened to the call of the footlights again and his signed a three-months contract with William Morris, Inc., to do a dancing pantomine at the American Theatre.

SCORES RUSH TO ENTERTAIN YOUNG TAFTS

By FRED J. M'ISAAC.
Special Representative of the Boston American at Beverly.

BEVERLY, July 10.—Invitations by the score are pouring into the Summer White House as a result of the arrival of Robert and Helen Taft at Burgess Point. The young people are vivacious and anxious for a good time, and the residents of the North Shore are determined to give it to them.

New York, Boston, and especially Washington and Ohio society folk who are summering at Beverly, Manchester and Magnolia are ready to entertain the Tafts, and it is expected that lawn fetes, water events, balls and carnivals will be given at different estates.

Mrs. Lars Anderson was their first hostess. The young Tafts had hardly had time to look over their summer home when the houseboat of the Lars Andersons crept into Beverly Bay and a swift launch carried ashore an invitation for Mrs. Taft, Miss Taft and Robert Taft to lunch on board. Mrs. Taft declined for herself, but accepted for the young people, and they went out to the houseboat.

The introduction of Senator Lodge and Congressman Gardner into the taxicab squabble has caused much excitement in this town, and there is actual danger of the cab men and their sympathizers going over to the Democratic party, voting for license and addressing a round robin to President Taft.

It began last Wednesday when an application from the Taxi Service Company of Boston for licenses to operate five taxicabs from the Beverly depot was presented to the Board of Aldermen. It fell into the hands of a committee consisting of a cab driver, a liveryman and a blacksmith. The taxicab company got scared and sent a man down here. "I am surprised that there should be any opposition to such a splendid proposition," he said. "You are impeding the march of progress. Why, do you know who it was that proposed that we install taxicabs in Beverly?"

"No, who?" asked Alderman Desmond, who runs a livery stable.

"Your own Congressman, Mr. Gardner, and Senator Lodge."

"You don't say so, replied Alderman Desmond. "Well, just wait until I see Gussie Gardner."

When President Taft arrived a week ago there was only one known Democrat in Beverly. Now there are eight, all cab drivers, and the number is growing rapidly.

The proposition has been made to make a straw man, label it "Gussie Gardner," and have all eight cabs run over it. The conservatives are in favor of hearing what Mr. Gardner has to say. He refuses to be interviewed.

TEN ARE INJURED IN CAR ACCIDENT

BARRINGTON, R. I., July 10.—Ten out of twelve persons were badly hurt, two of them fatally, when a street car running at high speed left the rails at a curve in West Barrington. All were thrown off the car when it was stopped by a tree in its path. Fortunately it did not capsize, in which event the passengers would have been crushed as they lay on the ground.

Augustine Fletcher of Providence, the motorman, is dead. George F. Greene of Providence, the conductor, is not expected to live.

CIVIL SERVICE FARCE ATTACKED

WASHINGTON, July 10.—If a resolution introduced by Senator Borah is agreed to by the Senate, a most exhaustive investigation of the administration of the civil service will be undertaken. The resolution would empower the committee to go wherever it may deem necessary, to summon witnesses and put them under oath. The charge is made that favoritism is rampant in the departments, and that while promotions ethically are dependent upon the operations of the civil service law, its administration really is a farce.

HELEN FRICK REAL LADY BOUNTIFUL ON NORTH SHORE FARM

Miss Helen Frick, daughter of the steel millionaire, from a snapshot taken this week by a Boston American photographer.

MISS HELEN FRICK, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Henry Clay Frick, is a real Lady Bountiful. Hundreds of children, many of them orphans, are hailing with delight the paradise she has made for them on the old Stillman estate in Hamilton. There they can come from the cities and romp for a week under the trees and among the flowers with kindergartners to play games with them and chefs to cater to their ravenous appetites. Miss Frick has been busy superintending the work of preparation, and is much pleased now that her latest charitable project is in full swing.

H. C. Frick, her father, takes delight also in his handsome daughter's charity, and not only encourages her in the work, but furnishes the money to make it a success.

TRESTLE BURNED; WRECK AVERTED

WINSTED, Ct., July 10.—A trackwalker early to-day discovered that a railroad trestle at Barkhamsted, four miles east of here, had been burned during the night. He hastened back to Winstead and flagged a Central New England passenger train bound for Hartford, thus averting a bad wreck. A spark from the locomotive is supposed to have fired the trestle.

NEW ENGLAND HIT BY JOKER IN TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, July 10.—New England manufacturers are hard hit by a little joker in the Aldrich tariff bill. The joker in question is on bleaching powder, called chloride of lime, which is used extensively in many Massachusetts paper mills and cotton factories. The Senate amendment increases the duty on this 150 per cent., the present rate of one-fifth of a cent a pound being advanced to one-half a cent a pound.

The joker was put in the tariff bill quietly at a late hour, and unexpectedly to both Senators Lodge and Crane.

Bleaching powder is largely used in the manufacture of paper, inclusive of print paper, and it is used in bleaching cloths. The importation last year was 106,000,000 pounds, valued at $800,000.

The joker, it is said, was perpetrated by Michigan people. Senator Burrows of that State is on the Finance Committee and also on the Conference Committee.

It will depend on Representative McCall to restore the old rate. He is the House conferee from New England and on him will rest the great burden of endeavoring to prevent the increase in duty called for in the Aldrich bill.

Tanners and shoe manufacturers from New England and other sections of the United States are gathering here to work for free hides in connection with the conference on the tariff bill.

The tanners and shoemen to-day urge President Taft to exert his influence with the conference committee in behalf of free hides. The New England delegation, which was appointed to come here at the free hides meeting held in Boston on June 30, met the President to-day.

WOMAN SAVES NEIGHBORS IN FIERCE FIRE

Mrs. Salome Goldstein of No. 19 Mott street was the heroine of an incendiary fire in the 3½-story brick dwelling at No. 332 Harrison avenue, corner of Oswego street, South End, shortly after midnight this morning. The fire endangered the lives of several tenants.

Had it not been for the heroism of Mrs. Goldstein many who were asleep might have been burned. She rescued two-year-old Sadie Freed, carrying her to the street down a flight of burning stairs.

Mrs. Goldstein was sitting on the door-steps of No. 8 Oswego street with a party of friends when she discovered the glare of fire in the cigar store of Lazarus Christol on the first floor of the building.

Suddenly the glare burst into a sheet of flame. Thinking of the people asleep on the upper floors, the brave young woman sent her brother-in-law, Henry Goldstein, to sound an alarm from Box 64 and then rushed across the street to the side door of the building, shouting "Fire."

Fled in Night Dress.

Up the stairs she ran through the blinding smoke, which was rapidly filling the entire house. On the second floor was sleeping Samuel Freed, his sister Sarah and four children. By pounding on the doors and shouting "Fire" Mrs. Goldstein succeeded in awakening Freed, who, realizing the danger, roused the rest of the family. They fled to the street in their nightclothes.

Wrapping her dress around her mouth and nostrils the young woman made her way up the stairs through the smoke, now so thick she could hardly see, to the third floor, where she awoke Max Wheeler, his wife Dora and their four children, Fannie, seventeen; Myer, thirteen; Willie, seven, and Molly, four. She helped them down the stairs.

She then learned that Solomon Kirshon, his wife and child were asleep in the attic. Unflinchingly the brave woman groped her way to the Kirshons' apartments. While Kirshon carried the child, Mrs. Goldstein helped Mrs. Kirshon to the street.

Again Risks Life.

In saving the Freed child Mrs. Goldstein again risked her life. She groped her way through the suffocating smoke to the Freed apartments, where she found the baby fast being overcome by the smoke.

Grasping a blanket, she wrapped it around the infant and started for the street. By this time the stairs had caught fire. In spite of this the daring girl, grasping the child closer to her breast, made a wild dash down the burning stairs, staggering into the arms of her brother. She was partially overcome by smoke.

In the meantime Patrolman Max B. Thorner had discovered the fire from the Harrison avenue side of the building, and after sending in a still alarm to engine No. 3 returned and helped in the work of rescue.

The many suspicious circumstances surrounding the fire have led the police and fire officials to believe that it was the work of an incendiary. An investigation is being made to-day by State Fire Marshal Silas Smith. Arrests are likely to follow. The loss is estimated at $1,000.

8,000,000 IN WAR ON WHITE PLAGUE

STOCKHOLM, July 10.—There are now 8,000,000 people in the great army fighting the white plague, according to the report read to-day at the eighth International Tuberculosis Congress, from Nathan Straus of the United States. Mr. Straus' report was presented by Dr. Arthur Randolph Green, one of the American delegates and a director in the Straus Pasteurized milk work. The report says:

"The outlook in America is for steady progress in the treatment and care of cases of tuberculosis. The city of Chicago on January 1 put into force a law forbidding the sale of milk or cream unless it had come from tuberculin tested herds, or unless it had been pasteurized with a sufficient degree of heat for sufficient time to kill the bacteria."

PUBLIC HEALTH IS NEW HARVARD STUDY

The subject of public health and preventive medicine, a very important one in recent years, finds emphasis in the establishment by Harvard Medical School of a new department devoted solely to those two subjects, at the head of which will be Dr. Milton J. Rosenau, director of the hygienic laboratory of the United States Public Health Marine Hospital Service at Washington, D. C., for the last eleven years.

Dr. Rosenau will begin his service at Harvard under the official title of professor of hygiene and preventive medicine.

OIL EXPLOSION; 2 MEN BURNED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 10.—Two men were badly burned and $100,000 property damage was caused by a mysterious explosion of 135,000 gallons of kerosene on an oil barge at Harbor Junction early to-day. The police of the seventh district are now investigating to learn the cause of the blow-up if possible. The barge and oil are still burning in the stream and the harbor is filled with dense black smoke.

STRAY SHOT MISSES MERCHANT BY FOOT

Oscar Sundquist of Waltham escaped death by about a foot early to-day when a bullet crashed through the window of his restaurant at No. 9 Pine street just as he was raising a curtain to open for business. Inspector McKenna and Patrolman Eastman have failed to find any one who heard the shot or saw any one about. The hole in the window indicates that the bullet came from the corner of Pine and Moody streets, about thirty-five yards distant.

ELKS' TRAIN IN CRASH.

GRAND JUNCTION, Col., July 10.—A misunderstanding of orders resulted in a head-on collision to-day east of Whitehouse, Utah, of the Twin City Elks' special and an eastbound freight. Three trainmen were buried in the wreckage.

MRS. GOLDSTEIN, FIRE HEROINE OF MOTT STREET

HUNT 2 MEN FOR DAYLIGHT GEM ROBBERY

Diamonds valued at $400, it was learned to-day, were cleverly lifted yesterday afternoon by a well-dressed stranger from the store of the Thomas Long Company, No. 39-41 Summer street. Police inspectors are searching the State over and also New York in the hope of fixing the theft upon a pair of suspects who are known to have been in Boston within a few days.

About noon the well-groomed stranger entered the establishment of the Long company and asked to be shown some unset diamonds. A tray was handed him containing diamonds of varying sizes arranged on tissue paper. Someone, believed to be a confederate of the stranger, attracted the attention of the clerk, and in a twinkling the strange young man vanished with a whole paper of diamonds. They were small stones, aggregating in value about $400.

The theft was at once reported to the management and at police headquarters, and though plain clothes men scoured the city and watched outgoing trains no trace could be found of the suspected thief.

The police have a good description, which agrees with that of a notorious diamond thief, well known to the police, who was known to have been in Boston even as late as yesterday forenoon. The gems taken are the finest of small stones, and all bear the secret mark of the Thomas Long Company.

GETS BIGGEST MACKEREL IN THE ATLANTIC

The biggest mackerel ever caught in the Atlantic Ocean was brought into Boston to-day by Captain Rube McKay of the schooner Speculator. The fish weighed eight pounds, was thirty-three inches long and sixteen inches in circumference. It is three times as large as the ordinary large mackerel and is three pounds heavier than the fish which previously held the record. The fish brought in to-day was perfectly marked and perfect in shape.

The "grandfather of all mackerel," as this fish was called by the old sea captains, who came to look over the remarkable catch, was caught off Sankety Head, Cape Cod. It was one of 12,000 brought in by Captain McKay.

One of the wholesale fish buyers on T Wharf wanted to buy the fish to present to President Taft, but Elmer Prior of t firm of P. H. Prior, who bought the wh cargo, including the big fish, declared t he wanted to have the giant preserved.

EARLY, FREED FROM LEPER PEN, TELLS OF A YEAR OF TORMENT

NEW YORK, July 10.—John R. Early, the young Southerner, heralded about the country as a leper, gave a reception to prove that he is well. It was held at the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital and was attended by medical men, a number of Early's friends and a sprinkling of the general public interested in the case. Early, who came from Washington, where he had been quarantined for nearly a year, received his guests cordially and discussed his recent isolation.

Early related a humorous incident at the expense of the Washington authorities.

"What did you do when they had you shut up?" he was asked.

"I raised chickens," he said, "and both the chickens and their eggs were sent to Washington and sold in the open market. They wouldn't let my wife come within feet of me, but they had a watchman bring me food. He took no special precautions about it, either."

"If Early had been a leper those eggs might have spread the disease all over Washington," said Dr. Bulkley. "If it had been infectious at all the eggs would have carried it."

Just a "Fool Statement."

Continuing, Early told of his experiences during the past eventful year.

"To begin with I never saw a leper in my life and I wouldn't know a case of leprosy if I saw one," he said.

"My joking remark to the private physician who first examined me in Washington, that maybe it was leprosy I had, was one of those fool statements a man can make with all the innocence in the world and still bring down around his head more trouble than all the meanness he ever did.

"I didn't catch any skin trouble in the Philippines and never knew what it was to be sick for many years after I left the service. It was that pulp mill in North Carolina that got me. For the first month or so I did my work barehanded. The fumes were frightful, but the thought that I might become afflicted as the other men were never entered my head until one day just before quitting time. It was payday and the man working beside me, a giant of a fellow, had been telling me it was his eldest boy's birthday and he was going to buy him a pound box of candy as soon as he got his envelope and could get to a shop.

"A minute later, as he was leaning over the vat trying to pound out a big chestnut log that the chemical hadn't eaten, he drew in a deep breath with a jerk, stood bolt upright for a second and then dropped in his tracks. He was dead when I tried to pull him to his feet.

Warned by Workmen.

"They told me afterward that I would go the same way if I didn't protect my hands and keep back from the fumes as much as possible.

"Being strong and healthy I laughed at all the talk about the danger of going bare handed until along about the middle of July, after I had been at work two months, I noticed my face was beginning to swell and my hands and legs growing red and a little bit sore.

"I had been planning to go to Washington a long time to prosecute two pension claims, one for deafness in my left ear and the other for a mild form of chronic indigestion that I had contracted in the service.

"I stopped in Washington with my good friend, Captain Seaver of the Salvation Army, and about the first thing he said was to advise me to see a physician at once and get something to reduce the swelling of my face and hands. Two days later when the swelling of my face got so bad I could hardly see out of either eye I consented to let Captain Seaver send for a doctor.

"He came up to my room and looked at my face and hands from a distance of about six feet. I could see he had no more idea what was the matter with me than a child would have, and I said jokingly:

"'Don't you think it might be leprosy?'

"He took it very seriously and asked me right away if I had ever seen a leper in the army service. I told him I hadn't, but he didn't stay very long after that. He told me frankly that he couldn't do anything for me and went away.

"I had gone to bed (it must have been 1 o'clock in the morning) when another physician, who I afterward learned was of the health department, came into my room without knocking, lit the gas and told me to get up. I am used to obeying orders and I did as he ordered. All he did was to roll up the sleeve of my pajamas half way up to the elbow. Then he went out of the room without saying a word and locked the door from the outside.

Soldiers on Guard.

"You can imagine it had me guessing. There wasn't any use in raising a rumpus at that time of night, though, and I went back to bed. It wasn't more than an hour before the door was unlocked and the doctor, who stood out in the hall, told me to get into my clothes, go down into the street and get in an ambulance I would find waiting. To my questions as to what it all meant he would only say, "Never mind; you come along and do as you are told."

"I slept all night in the ambulance, which was driven to the Eastern Branch Reservation, and the next morning two soldiers pitched a tent within a few feet of the tidewater mark and told me it was to be mine for a while. Their orders were to establish a dead line about me which they themselves were not to overstep. The nearest any one was to come to me, they said, was ten feet. They didn't know why when I asked them.

"The next day I had come to my senses enough to know that I was in a pretty serious fix and I made up my mind I'd find out just how serious before sunset. So when the doctor came I told him I wanted to write a letter to my wife letting her know my predicament and I asked him what to say in the letter was the matter with me.

"He said, and I can remember every word of it, 'I don't need tell you anything more than that the letter you are going to write your wife will never be handled by any one but me. Nothing you ever handle again will ever be touched by any human being. Write your letter and say what you please, but let your wife understand that I am to rewrite whatever you write.

Wife Called Help in Vain.

"The surroundings of that tent were about as unhealthful as ever a strong, able-bodied man could stand. On one side was the crematory. On another side was the smallpox hospital. On another was the Federal prison. Facing the door of my tent the tidewater swept back and forth each day the sewage from the prison. And all this time, remember, I was taking absolutely no treatment for my skin disease.

"By December it was so cold of nights in my tent that sleep was almost out of the question. I was told that I could get warmer quarters by paying my own living expenses out of the pension I had received since I had been pronounced a leper.

"The night before I was to move I heard a 'distress' whistle blown again and again. I didn't know then that my wife, who had moved into the house about a quarter of a mile down the tidewater line, had bought a policeman's whistle to summon aid in case of an emergency.

"So it wasn't until the next morning that I learned that during the night, while she was alone in that little house, she had given birth to a son and tried in vain to summon help with that whistle. The nearest neighbors heard the signal, but they thought I had moved into the house and were afraid to come. That ought to be enough" of the unpleasant side of my story."

MABEL SIGEL, DAUGHTER OF ELSIE'S UNCLE

Snapshot of young woman as with her father, Paul Sigel, she identified body of her cousin. Paul Sigel and his family have been terrorized by a Chinese secret society.

SIGELS GIVE UP OLD HOME FLEE IN FEAR

NEW YORK, July 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sigel's removal from their Wadsworth avenue home is said to-day to have been through fear of assassination at the hands of Chinese High Treason Society and friends of Leon Ling, who is wanted for the murder of their daughter Elsie, in the Chinaman's rooms at No. 782 Eighth avenue.

The threats made upon their lives, it is declared, have forced them to come out with a statement in which they endeavor to place the blame for the tragedy upon a white man and absolve the Chinese from all connection with the crime.

Mr. Sigel is living at No. 541 West One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street, where he was found by an AMERICAN reporter under the name of Smyth. His wife, who has been prostrated ever since the tragedy was brought to light, is in the country with friends. He is being constantly guarded by detectives.

The statement, in which an attempt was made to "whitewash" the Chinese in connection with the murder, was given out by Mrs. Rudolph Sigel, an aunt of the slain girl. She was seen in her home at No. 922 West One Hundred and Fifty-eighth street.

"Neither Leon Ling nor any other Chinaman killed Elsie, according to our belief," she said. "We think that Elsie was set upon by a white man, that he beat her to death for the purpose of robbery and that he then sent her body to Leon Ling's room.

"The Sigel family does not blame the Chinese for the death of Elsie. No member believes that the girl was murdered by a Chinaman. I believe that a white man who was a banger-on around the chop suey restaurants and resorts in Chinatown saw that Elsie wore considerable jewelry.

"He planned to murder her, take her jewelry and then try to throw suspicion on the Chinese whom she had converted.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

MOHAWK CUTS ITS DIVIDEND

STATE STREET, July 10.—Noon—There was nothing to attract attention in the local stock market this forenoon. There was an absence of trading, and the only news announced of importance was that the Mohawk Mining Company had reduced its semi-annual dividend to $1. A $2 dividend was paid last February. This company paid its initial dividend in January, 1906, and paid a total of $5 that year. In 1907 it paid $9, $2.50 in 1908 and $3 the present.

North Butte showed a firmer tone, and a slight covering movement put the price up fractionally. Copper Range stiffened to 80, while Mohawk was soft at 63. Amalgamated was quiet at 81 and above. Little was done in the arbitrage list, and the market is a typical midsummer one.

There was a scarcity of curb members present, as some forty of them went to New York last night to play a return game of ball with members of the New York Curb. However, a fair volume of business was transacted with the few remaining ones. Cactus was active and strong up to 3⅝. Southwestern spurted to 30 cents and considerable business was done in Mollie Gibson up to 30 cents.

The Stock Exchange has transferred $9,763,000 Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies 5 per cent. collateral trust bonds of 1959 from the unlisted to the listed department.

LISTLESS DAY IN WALL ST.

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, July 10.—With the exception of Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central and a few outside specialties trading in the stock market early to-day was devoid of interest. Canadian Pacific advanced one point, while Illinois Central gained 1⅝.

There was a fairly good demand for stock of the National Lead Co. This was due to Daniel Guggenheim's statement regarding the lead trade.

Among the standard railroad shares Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were slightly higher. Reading was heavy for some mysterious reason and declined 1-2 point while the balance of the list was advancing. Steel common was the leader in the industrial group. On a fair volume of transactions it rose to 69.

In London American shares were heavy in the early trading, but improved later.

Larose was the feature of the curb market in New York with a new high record of 8 1-2. Trading was quiet with no material price changes in other directions.

LEXINGTON PARK TICKETS ARE FREE

Manager Benson of Lexington Park invites the public to come now and look, for the park is at its best ever, with more fine attractions and more free attractions than ever before, the roomiest, coolest and most interesting place, he claims, that can be found in the country, and he takes special pride that he has the biggest menagerie in the United States. The SUNDAY AMERICAN will give a free ticket for Lexington Park to be used on Tuesday or Friday. Inside the gate most everything is free.

STEAL HANDCAR; GET BROKEN BONES

A joy ride on a handcar on the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad proved rather disastrous for two little Brookline girls, Catherine Green, eleven years, of No. 64 Pearl street, and Mary Munns, eleven years, of No. 7 Washington street, the Green girl breaking her left ankle and the Munns girl sustaining injuries to her left foot when the handcar collided with a stationary freight train.

ALFRED HENRY LEWIS will tell in the SUNDAY AMERICAN another of his fascinating East Side New York stories.

WALL STREET NEWS OF INTEREST TO INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, July 10.—While those who are talking the most optimistically are not the regular semi-professional traders who always have some commitments in the market, it is worthy of note that the latter, while not violently bullish, are by no means bearish. Some of them concede the possibility of a reaction of two or three points, but none of them apprehend a break. They say there is absolutely nothing in sight to bring about a decline of more than moderate proportions. The factors, from their point of view, are all favorable, and while they admit that reactions may occur, their statements to the effect take the form of assurances that little recessions from time to time would improve the technical position and keep the market in good tone.

To keep conditions entirely healthful, they say, the large interests may from time to time "permit" reactions, but they never concede that it might not be in the power of the large interests to prevent reactions, or that it might even be to their advantage to bring about substantial declines, preparatory to accumulation for the rise so generally expected in the Fall.

It seems to be generally taken for granted that the large interests are still heavily committed to the bull side, although it must be evident that since the public bought stocks freeley a month ago and are still holding on, some interests must have let go about that time and have not since taken hold.

$ $ $

Although it is idle to prognosticate so far ahead, it would not be surprising to witness much firmer money here this Fall than in Europe. As the world-wide depression originated here, so this country will set the pace for a great revival of trade. If the business improvement attains what is expected, with almost a bumper crop for the banks to finance, the floating supply of idle funds in the country must become greatly absorbed. The situation would be further accentuated by any bull movement on the stock market. Well supplied with loanable capital as the banks are at present, their position does not allow of more than a certain expansion.

$ $ $

Chesapeake & Ohio is bought by what are known in the phraseology of the street as "good people." The stocks of this road have received much attention recently. The reason—for Wall street must always have its reason for everything that occurs—was that the road is acquiring a connecting link, probably the Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville, with the western half of the Hawley system, to form eventually a transcontinental line.

The Chesapeake & Ohio, however, runs through a country rich in minerals and its western section taps a fine agricultural country. The sudden activity in connection with this security may be based on the traffic possibilities, although it must be remembered that the head of the system is a speculator as well as a railroad man.

$ $ $

Interborough preferred appears to be particularly heavy, and it looks as if some of the speculators who had freely bought this stock on tips in the past couple of weeks are more or less anxious to get out, as they can not see how the sale of $10,000,000 Interborough Rapid Transit bonds was much of an argument in favor of higher prices for their stock. The argument for advance, it will be remembered, was that the Morgan house was beginning to take a substantial interest in the local traction system, and the purchase of the bonds shows the nature of that interest.

Brokers having selling orders in the Interborough-Metropolitan 4½ per cent. bonds say that the market for these securities is not as good as it looked, and that it is a difficult matter to make sales without depressing the price. As soon as bonds are offered quotations recede, but if the offerings are withdrawn the prices will again mark up.

$ $ $

Although copper has declined three-fourths of a cent within the last two or three weeks, producers of the metal continue to maintain a cheerful view of the situation. They regard the fluctuations in prices abroad as speculative to a certain extent and declare the customary buying movement will occur in the near future and restore quotations to the high level reached during the upward movement last month. As a matter of fact, there are many producers who predict that the metal will go above 14 cents on the next buying movement.

For several years it has been customary for certain speculative interests abroad periodically to depress copper as low as possible, accumulate a large tonnage at the low levels, then reverse their position and sell out on the advance. This practice has been more in evidence over the last twelve months than in any similar period in years past.

When John D. Makes Our Butter—

By T. E. POWERS

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner.

It is reported that one of the chemists employed at the Stadanrd Oil refinery at Bayonne, N. J., has discovered a method of making butter, or near butter, out of petroleum. This new product is said to be purer and more wholesome than that made by old-fashioned methods from cows' milk. Petroleobutter, as it may or may not be called, is the forty-seventh by-product made from petroleum.—NEWS ITEM.

THE MILKMAID OF BAYONNE, N. J.

By ISAAC ANDERSON.

"Oh, where are you going, my pretty maid?"
"I'm going a-milking, sir," she said.
"But where are the cows, my pretty maid?"
"We haven't any, kind sir," she said.
"Now quit your kidding, my pretty maid."
"I'm telling the truth," kind sir," she said.
"I'm in the employ of Standard Oil,
"And for them I perform my daily toil.
"Their dairy farm is at fair Bayonne,
"Though they have no cows—not a single one.
"But they tanks a-plenty of kerosene,
"And I milk them daily at morn and e'en.
"They yield some millions of gallons a day,
"Which is made into butter and curds and whey.
"And as for cows, they are out of date,
"As you'd know if you'd read the papers of late.
"Won't you try our butter, kind sir?" she said.
I replied: "Not to-day, my pretty maid."

SOCIETY AIDS MRS. MURPHY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am a subscriber to your paper and read the sad story of Mrs. John Murphy. Being a member of the Neptune branch of the Sunshine Society of Provincetown, an organization which aims to bring good cheer in the lives of the unhappy, I felt it my duty to do what I could. I spoke to the other members of the branch, ten in number, and with the assistance of kind friends, we packed a barrel of clothing and groceries and sent them to her. We also sent her some money. Mrs. Murphy was deeply grateful, and sent us a note of thanks. Hoping our ray of sunshine will gladden their sad hearts, and thanking you for bringing them to the notice of those who are glad to assist them, we remain yours in good cheer,

LIE PASSED BY MALDEN JUDGE

That Judge Charles M. Bruce of the Malden District Court is capable of ruling his own court was made evident when he admistered a severe reprimand to everybody that he had cause to believe was deserving of it.

The case which occupied the attention of the court was one of assault from Everett, in which Italians were involved. Guiseppe Basili, a government witness, was informed by the court that he was "more or less a liar."

The assault is alleged to have taken place in Everett on June 3, in which Michael Lombibo of Boston is alleged to have struck Antonio Rocco over the head with an iron bar.

BOSTON SELLS 6 PARCELS OF PARKMAN LAND

Sales of real estate to-day were of larger volume than any previous day of the week, and the number marked a new record for Saturday's business.

One of the largest deals reported was the sale by the city of Boston of six parcels in various parts of the city which were bequeathed to it by the late George F. Parkman. These sales are in addition to the large number of estates disposed of by the Parkman estate over a week ago to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

J. Murray Howe of No. 28 State street was the broker in the transaction, acting for Edmund D. Codman, the executor of the Parkman estate, and the city of Boston. He has sold the estate at No. 13 North Anderson street, on the corner of Adams place, consisting of a lot containing 2,130 square feet. The assessed value is $6,600, of which $5,900 is on the land and $700 is on the old one-story brick building with wooden ell. The purchaser is Samuel L. Dana, who buys for improvement. The deed has gone to record in the sale of this property, as well as the following estates:

No. 17 Parkman street, assessed for $4,900, of which $3,700 is on the 1,340 square feet of land and $1,200 on the three-story brick building. The purchaser is Lazar Jacobovitz, who buys for improvement.

No. 23 Parkman street, assessed for $4,900, of which $3,700 is on the 1,340 square feet of land and $1,200 on the three-story brick building. The purchaser is Simon Silverman, who buys for improvement.

Nos. 29-31 Blossom street, corner of Parkman street, assessed for $5,300, of which $3,800 is on the 1,000 square feet of land, and $1,500 on the three-story brick building. The purchaser is Louis Siskind, who buys for improvement.

No. 23 Wellington street, assessed for $28,700, of which $7,300 is on the 5,742 square feet of land and $21,400 on the four-story brick building. The purchaser is Fannie A. Leventall, who buys for investment.

No. 35 Village street, assessed for $17,000, of which $9,900 is on the 3,177 square feet of land and $7,100 on the four-story brick building. The purchaser is Joshua Harron, who buys for investment.

J. Murray Howe was the broker in all these transactions.

Papers have been also passed in the sale of the property at No. 21 North Grove street from Elizabeth Mounhan to Walter S. Crane. The assessed value is $4,400, of which $2,400 is on the 800 square feet. The building is a two and one-half story frame affair.

In the West End the 3½-story brick house and 640 square feet of land, at No. 30 Grove street, near Phillips street, and assessed for a total of $4100, have been purchased by John J. Noble, trustee, who also owns the adjoining estate, from Frederick Kem. The land is rated for $2100.

Elizabeth B. Donovan et al. have sold to Michael Lynch et al. the two 2½-story frame houses and 1963 square feet of land at Nos. 35-37 Malden street, near Harrison avenue, South End. The property is taxed on a total valuation of $3800, of which $3300 is on the land.

In Brighton, Albert T. Thompson et ux. and David Hollis et al., trustees, have sold to the National Market Bank of Brighton the large frame house, stable and 68,923 square feet of land at No. 512 Cambridge street, corner of Union square and extending through to Webster avenue. This estate is assessed for a total of $30,100, of which $31,000 is on the land. In the same suburb the frame house and 8754 square feet of land at No. 217 Brighton avenue, near Union square, have been sold by William E. Whitney to Helen Shaw. This estate is taxed on a total valuation of $9400, of which $7400 is on the land.

Among the sales in Dorchester reported to-day was that of the frame building, containing stores and apartments, and 4078 square feet of land at No. 1854 Dorchester avenue, corner of Wrentham street, which have been sold by James D. Fitzgerald to Samuel Freudenberg. The property is assessed for a total of $13,400, of which $2400 is on the land.

In the same suburb Philip B. Long has sold to Emily V. Barrett a tract of land containing about 100,000 square feet, bounded by Train, Assabet and King streets and Neponset avenue. It is assessed at from 25 to 30 cents a foot.

Henry L. Wilder has sold to Solomon T. Golden the frame house and 3502 square feet of land at Nos. 12-14 Erie street, extending through to Elmo street, Dorchester. This property is taxed for a total of $5600, of which $1100 is on the land.

Another sale in the same district is that of six frame stores and a tract of land at the corner of Stoughton and Pleasant streets, which have been sold by Arthur G. Jones to John A. Brett. The land was rated by the assessors last year at 75 cents a foot. The buildings, being new, are not yet assessed.

In Roxbury a lot of land, containing 4,889 square feet and taxed for $3490, on Bower street, near Humboldt avenue, has been sold by James O. Leman to John Varnerin, title passing through William C. Whaley.

COUNSEL NAMED IN MULLINS TRIAL

Lawyers Henry H. Winslow and Frank McDermott of Cambridge were to-day appointed by Judge Lawton to defend James Mantir and Peter Delorey, the two young men who are charged with the murder of Annie Mullins in Squires Field, Arlington.

Winslow, who defended John Schidlofski, the wife slayer, was appointed chief counsel for Mantir, and McDermott for Delorey. Attorney John A. E. Moroney of Boston was appointed to assist Mr. Winslow.

Attorney Winslow has acted in many big cases and was assistant district attorney of Middlesex County from 1875 to 1880. It is believed that Mantir and Delorey will be placed on trial next October.

Make Up Your Mind What Drink You Want

The fountain days have come. But don't wait till you reach the fountain to know what drink you want.

Nature makes us all thirsty because it is good to take the proper kind of drink into the system.

She makes us thirstier in hot weather, because our systems need the proper kind of liquid more in hot weather.

But—the proper kind, remember!

Hot days pull down the system.

We do not want a drink with a narcotic or drug in it that will affect the heart.

If we can keep the stomach and the brain cool, and the heart normal, by some drink that puts new energy in us—that's the drink to take.

Hires—besides being a delicious drink—does just these things.

It gives you energy—braces you up—without any after-effect. It is a splendid digestive—soothes and cools the stomach. Made of pure ingredients—herbs as Nature presents them to us.

When you go to the fountain call for it by name—Hires. You will thoroughly enjoy a good cool drink which will keep you cool.

Children actually need it in hot weather.

ETROIT AND ATHLETICS FIGHT FOR FIRST PLACE

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

KETCHEL SIGNS UP FOR FIGHT WITH LANGFORD

Who Wouldn't Take a Crack on the Knob for $6?---By Bud Fisher.

TWO BIG ATHLETIC MEETS ON TO-DAY FOR THE BOYS OF BOSTON

The boys of Charlestown and Dorchester are all ready to-day for the first two in the series of twenty-one athletic meets started by the Boston-1915 committee. Two o'clock this afternoon sees the contestants at the Sullivan square playground in Charlestown and on Franklin Field in Dorchester. The meet on Franklin Field is in charge of John O'Reilly. Edmund Hynes is in charge of the meet in Charlestown.

For the past two days Charlestown boys have been thronging the Bunker Hill Boys' Club, making out their entries for the meets. A committee of fifteen boys has been at work spreading the news of the meet, and helping other boys with their entries. Special interest has been shown at the Warren Bridge Floating Bathhouse and at the Dewey Beach Bathing Station, from both of which places a large number of boys have enrolled.

The boys' committee is divided into two groups, senior and junior. The boys in the senior group who have been at work organizing the meet are Stephen Poore, Edward Maguire, Ralph Stidstone, John Carr, George Cummings, Norman Bonney, Richard McLaughlin, Arthur Laurie; the juniors are Fred Cummings, Warren Lively, William Sullivan, William McLaughlin, William McVarish, Fred Calandreila and Vincent Delliveneri.

Entries for the meets are evenly divided among the running and jumping events. The running broad jump and the dashes, 50 and 100 yards, have proved specially popular. The younger boys have been practising with the eight pound shot with good results.

The preparations for the meet in Charlestown have had the advantage of support from two well-known local athletes, Dr. Edward M. Plummer, who is remembered for his feats as a swimmer, and Dan Hurley, the Harvard football captain of 1905.

In Dorchester the entries have been made largely under the supervision of Mr. O'Reilly. The events at Franklin Field are run off close to the Municipal Building, which is used for dressing room purposes. At Sullivan square two large dressing room tents have been pitched by the Boston Playground Association for the use of the Charlestown boys.

No admission fee is charged at either the meet in Charlestown or in Dorchester. It was the hope of the Boston-1915 Committee in planning these games that considerable local pride would be aroused by the meets in each district, and that by the end of the Summer, when the final meet of all districts is held at Wood Island Park, there will be a general response from all quarters of the city.

Trainer Morgan worked D. W. Caton's yearling colt by Cochato, 2:11½, an eighth the other morning in 24 seconds, and he was only broken to harness a few weeks ago.

"Whitey" Crowley has added to his Combination Park stable the pacer Directum Wood, that made a mile go in 1:04¾ in the intercity meeting, and the pacing gelding Krispen, 2:14½, one of the Dorchester Club winners. Both horses are to be raced.

PAPKE GOING ABROAD.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—All chances of a return match with Stanley Ketchel failing him, Billy Papke will proceed to England and Paris after his fight with Fireman Jim Flynn in Los Angeles, according to Louis Blot, Papke's local representative. "If Ketchel is matched with Sam Langford, there will be no legitimate opponents left hereabouts for him to meet," said Papke. "Now, having received several offers from Paris clubs, Billy will accept them, and leave for London shortly after his fight with Flynn."

PACKEY M'FARLAND TO BOX BRONSON

INDIANAPOLIS, July 10.—Ray Bronson, the local lightweight, has signed articles to meet Packey McFarland of Chicago in a twenty round contest before the West Side A. C. of New Orleans, Sunday, August 15. It now remains for the club to obtain the signature of McFarland.

FOR MARBLEHEAD RACES.

The 38-foot launch building at Lawley's from designs of Arthur Binney for Vice-Commodore F. Lewis Clark of the Eastern Y. C. is nearly ready for planking. This boat after being used at Marblehead this Summer during the trials and the German-American match will probably be shipped across the country to Spokane, Wash.

BOSTON BOAT IN RACE.

The sloop Intrepid, bought this Spring by G. P. Granberry of New York from Henry A. Church of Boston, has been entered in the Harlem Y. C. ocean race for the Brooklyn Yacht Club's challenge cup.

GOOD FUTURITY PROSPECTS.

Judging by the large number of two and three year olds entered in the Review futurities, upon which the June payment was made, there are a lot of young trotters in training that are making a satisfactory showing in their work.

TRAINER EVANS IMPROVES.

Word from Lexington states that the well-known trainer W. W. Evans is improving from his illness. It was thought he would not recover but while still far from well he has been able to sit up most of the time for the past two weeks.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 10.—Joe Galligan of Chicago won a scheduled 10-round bout with young Donahue of Boston, being awarded the decision on a foul in the sixth round.

NEVADA TOWN IN FIGHT GAME WITH BIG BID

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Ely, Nevada, the latest mining town to break into the boxing game, comes through strongly in support of its ability to pull off the $25,000 match arranged between Ketchel and Langford by Tex Hall.

A message from the Nevada town states that the bid is guaranteed by twenty-two leading merchants of Ely and that every one in the town—capitalists, merchants, and everyone else—is back of the scheme and that the individual notes which have been signed and delivered to the First National Bank of Ely are good enough for the bank to issue a deposit certificate for over $50,000.

This could according to the Ely dispatch, easily be increased to $100,000 if this amount were necessary to bring the crack middleweights to battle on the Ely field.

Not only are the "sports" of the town back of the proposition, but all citizens are willing to put up their money to bring the fighters to Ely regardless of their interest in the game of fisticuffs, says the Ely news distributor, and it appears as if the newest fight centre of Nevada was prepared to put through a boxing exhibition that will put it on the pugilistic map along side of Goldfield and Tonopah.

Ketchel and his manager have nothing to say in regard to the match. Both are satisfied that hey had made a good bargain with Hall, the Nevada promoter, and they were also satisfied that Langford would be well pleased with the one-fifth of the prize money which they had allowed him a chance to win.

"Everything will be all right," said Ketchel. "I will go away for a little while to rest and will be in Nevada on the day called for in the articles. I need a rest, but I will have plenty of time before August 6."

BOXING
BITS OF NEWS

Al Kubiak called off his fight with Sam Langford. The Michigan boxer got cold feet.

* * *

The twenty three-minute rounds contest arranged between the Welsh lightweight, Fred Welsh, and Young Josephs of Aldgate, will be decided at Mountain Ash, Cardiff, Wales, on Monday, July 12.

* * *

What seemed like a stumbling block to the match between Johnny Summers and Jimmy Britt has been overcome, and the admirers of the Canning Town lad will see their hero box at home on July 31.

* * *

Grover Hayes, the lightweight boxer, has left for his home in Chicago. Hayes was summoned home as his brother is very ill, suffering from a severe attack of appendicitis. The little fighter will probably stay in Chicago until the Fall.

* * *

Billy Papke has been matched to meet Jim Flynn at Los Angeles in a ten-round bout in place of Ketchel, before Tom McCarey's club on July 17, during Elks' week. Owing to Ketchel's injured hand the Britt entry will be unable to start.

* * *

George Monroe, whose defeat by Terry McGovern caused the alliance between Terry and Sam Harris, is back from Savannah, looking prosperous and healthy. George has been successfully operating a boxing school in the Southern town and will return in September to take charge of his business. Monroe says the game is on the boom there, and he expects to hold some high-class shows during the Winter.

* * *

Billy Roche, who refereed the Cross-Hyland and Ketchel-Papke fights, is going to bring Lew Powell East in the Fall. Powell won all the way in a twenty-round battle with Young Erne. Powell is a fast two-handed fighter, but lacks the wallop. He may show up well in ten-round bouts.

* * *

Joe Thomas has decided to quit the ring for good. The former welterweight champion tried a few days ago to get back into the game again, but lost to Tommy Sullivan. He had intended boxing next Tuesday, Fred Douglass having offered him a match with either Harry Lewis or Harry Mansfield. Yesterday Fred received a letter from Thomas telling of his decision to quit the ring. But according to Thomas there is another reason that may have a bearing on his decision. Joe has taken a knockout from Cupid, and is going to marry in the near future a sister of Jimmie Gardner, also a well-known boxer.

* * *

Leach Cross says there has been a painful mistake made by the press in saying he received $370 for his end of the Hyland fight. Leach says the correct figures were $376.60. That "extra" will help buy polish for the dentist chair.

* * *

Monte Attell's next opponent may be Al Delmont of Boston. Johnny Mooney, his manager, is negotiating with the Western promoters, and the chances for a match with Monte look good.

* * *

Johnny Loftus, who trained Cross for his fight with Hyland, remained on the coast to train Johnny Frayne for his coming battle with Young Corbett, which takes place on July 17. They will go twenty-five rounds at 135 pounds at 10 o'clock.

* * *

Billy Papke wants another crack at Ketchel, and wants the battle to go to a finish. Papke is not making a very big yell over the decision, but says the pictures which were taken of the battle will show the public at large who was entitled to the verdict. Bill says he can beat the "Assassin" in any kind of going. Send them to a finish. Until they do the question of supremacy will always be in doubt.

* * *

Sam Langford and Jimmy Walsh may appear at the next show of the National Club of Pittsburg. Both fighters have been made offers to meet men of their weight and each has accepted.

* * *

Tommy Burns, the American fighter, continues to be the big drawing card throughout the colonies. He appeared at Townsville, in Queensland, with the Townsville Minstrels, before a packed house. Burns said he hoped within a year to have again fought Jack Johnson, and he wished to return to Townsville as champion—an announcement that was greeted with much applause. He has been cleaning up nicely in his theatrical work.

* * *

In a cable Freddie Welsh said: "Am training hard for my bout with Young Josephs July 12. Am fit and will win. Undecided to accept McCarey's offer to box Nelson. May take Summers for lightweight championship of England in October."

* * *

Packey McFarland is trying to hold Nelson to the original agreement which was signed in Chicago in April. The articles call for 133 pounds, weigh in at 8 o'clock, the fight to take place at 2:30 in the afternoon; Nelson to get all the picture privileges and the money to be divided 75 and 25.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

HERE IS ONE THAT HAD A LOT of the fans talking after the game at the Doves' Park and the answer also goes for Blake, Collins, A Fan and Two Rooters.

> Straight Dope, Boston American:
> In the ninth inning of yesterday's game Boston was at bat with the bases full and none out. Thomas drew a base on balls, forcing in the winning run, but instead of going to first he started for the players' bench, later going to the sack when called on by Bowerman to do so.
> Could he have been called out for not starting to first or for running out of line? What is the rule covering this? REGULAR.

There is no rule which says how much time a man may take going to first on a base on balls, or what route he shall go. He could not be called out for running out of line, even if he went to first via third and second bases, but undoubtedly would have been declared out for delaying the game, the umpire being the sole judge of this. The player's own manager would likely have him sent to the bug house for observation if he attempted a stunt of that kind in a game.

> Baseball Editor, Boston American:
> The Whirlwinds, of South Boston, would like to arrange games with any eight to ten year old teams in the State, giving half the traveling expenses. The lineup is P. Casey, J. Ready, M. Flaherty, M. Berger, W. Clancy, A. Lynch, M. Frankel, G. Gallagher and H. Brady. Please print this challenge in your paper. MORRIS FRANKEL, Manager.

Sure thing, we'll print it, Morris. But tell me, do your mammas send nurses along on these trips, and what are you and Berger doing in that bunch?

THERE IS A YOUNG MAN IN Lawrence who thinks pretty well of himself. After reading his letter over several times I can't make up my mind whether he is in training as a pugilist or a humorist. Help, help! Here it is:

> Sporting Editor, Boston American.
> Young Jordan, the Lawrence Giant, is ready to fight five men in one night and they are Packy McFarland, Freddy Welsh, Dick Hyland, Johnny Thompson and Young Corbett. I am ready to bet $3,000 a side that I can knock any one of them out inside of ten rounds. Young Jordan stands 6 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 135 pounds and has a reach of 80 inches and has a knock-out punch with him all the time. If they are afraid to meet me then I will be ready to meet Battling Nelson for the lightweight championship of the world for a bet of $5,000 a side. Yours truly, YOUNG JORDAN.

Didn't you overlook a bet, Shorty? Why not include Johnson, Jeffries, Langford, Ketchel and a few other of the easy ones in your list? By the way, did you ever see $5,000 all at one time, or a set of boxing gloves except in a sporting goods store?

THE TRAVELING CHAMPIONSHIP is a new one, although from present indications the National and American titles appear to be traveling towards Pittsburg and Philadelphia. Here's a chance for teams that want to compete for the traveling championship of New England:

> Cambridge City nine, traveling champions of New England, have dates open away from home. Portland, Me.; Biddeford, Wakefield and Newport, R. I., preferred. Cambridge has beaten Nashua, N. H.; Keene, N. H.; Canton, Lowell Ind., etc. Write, wire or phone Manager Slocomb, Cambridge Western Union, Cambridge, Mass.

R. B. CHELSEA—THE WEIGHT limits in the various pugilistic classes was printed in this column last week, but here they are again. Cut this out and paste it in your hat:

Bantam, 115 pounds; feather, 122 pounds; lightweight, 133 pounds; welter, 142 pounds; middle, 158 pounds; light-heavy, 175 pounds; heavy, over 175 pounds.

> Straight Dope, Boston American.
> Now that Ketchel has shown by his fight with Papke that he is not the man to defeat Johnson, why do the fight promotors not arrange a chance for Sandy Ferguson to take up the white man's burden and take the title away from the big negro? In my opinion he is the only white man, barring Jeffries, who would have a chance with Johnson.
> GEORGE MARTIN.

Back up, George, your dope is very, very bad. Sandy wouldn't have a chance to beat Johnson or any other good fighter. His bout at the Armory with Joe Jeanette showed that Chelsae's stubborn child is a member of the down and out club and couldn't beat an egg. Neither could Jeanette, for that matter. And why is it the white man's burden? White and black men look alike when they get into the ring to fight.

THE BOSTON TYPOS WILL PLAY the Holy Name Club of South Boston at the American League grounds Monday at 3:30, and Wednesday afternoon will meet the Everett Independents at the same place.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE IS tightening up in great shape, and the runaway Tigers have been backed into a corner and almost—get that almost?—headed off. It took a long time to do it, and there was much speculation as to which club would be the one to do the heading. When the Philadelphia team got into its stride, baseball critics who had sized up the Quakers' pitching staff, foresaw trouble ahead for Jennings and his men. The Tigers have possibly a better fielding team, but in addition to a bunch of steady-going and hard-hitting players the Athletics have the pitchers, and that is why the game in Detroit this afternoon is a fight for the leadership.

GREAT DOINGS IN NEW YORK THIS afternoon when the curb brokers of Boston and Gotham line up for the annual ball game. The Boston team, with forty-two rooters, reached the big town this morning on the Yale. The Boston lineup will be as follows: Cronin, catcher; Baker, pitcher; Dealey, first base; Murphy, second base; Dasha, shortstop; White, third base; J. Cronin, right field; Coleman, centre field; Gagen, left field; substitute battery, Kilduff, catcher, and Walter Brown, pitcher.

ALES

BROCK HOPES TO BOX NELSON

CHICAGO, July 10.—Tom McGinty of Buffalo, manager of Phil Brock, the Cleveland lightweight, is in the city awaiting Brock's arrival, and together they will journey to Los Angeles, where Manager McCarey has promised the young Ohio battler a chance with some of the real good ones, including possibly a ten-round chance at Battling Nelson, if the latter's go Tuesday night with Ad Wolgast comes out all right.

"Brock is immensely improved," said McGinly, "and I have great hopes of him. He is a bright, clean young fellow and developing a punch that is a wonder. He can make 130 pounds if he has to, and is willing to meet any of them up to 133."

BRITT BACK OF NEW FIGHT PLAN

NEW YORK, July 10.—Silent Charley Harvey, who is still looking after the interests of Al Kaufman here in the East says that the fine Italian hand of Willus Britt is behind the scheme to shut off the proposed Kaufman-Johnson fight.

"You know when Johnson was here in New York," whispered Charley through his drooping palm, "he received a wire from Britt and the very next day began to stall about the go with Kaufman. I have an idea that Willus told him to break it, as the Ketchel match later would be worth just twice as much, as Johnson hasn't been in Frisco since he beat Burns.

"Well, now that Ketchel's showing against Papke was a frost, I should think that Johnson and Kaufman would be the card. They are steering Johnson wrong saying that the Ketchel card is the better one. Kaufman can beat Ketchel, and as for Johnson, why, we'll have to wait and see."

CUBS, IN HOLE FOR PITCHERS, WIRE TO BROWN

CHICAGO, July 10.—In all probability Mordecai Brown, the Cubs' star pitcher, will leave to join the team at Boston on Monday if the physicians pronounce his wife out of danger. Ed. Reulbach will not be able to be with the champions until the end of next week.

Secretary Thomas received a telegram from Manager Chance yesterday saying that he needed both pitchers badly and to do all in his power to have the star twirlers join the team in Boston.

Brown consulted the physicians about leaving, but was told that his wife still was in a serious condition and that it would not be safe for him to leave for a couple of days.

SULLIVAN TWINS MAKE BIG HIT

The Sullivan Twins, Mike and Jack, are an awful hit out West. They train together, sing and dance like one and manage each other with the same care and attention that a new mother gives her first born. Jack gets a match and Mike says:

"Jack, you stay right here; I'll fix the weight and see what these fellows will give. You start to work right away; do over eight miles on the road; box six rounds and skip the rope 500 times."

Mike is the cheese when Jack gets a go, and Jack does everything Mike suggests without a whimper. Maybe two weeks later Mike gets a match. Jack is Johnny at the rathole then, and is king.

"Mike, I'll get the best offer possible. Don't go in swimming at all to-day. You may catch cold. Stay indoors and do a little light work. Don't touch the steak in the ice box. You just eat some eggs and toast. I'll attend to that chunk of beef. I'm going over to see the manager now, and don't stop working until I return."

Mike obeys like a trained dog.

IN A WHEELBARROW.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 10.—From Portland to Boston, pushing a wheelbarrow, following as near as possible the west, the southern and eastern coast line of North America, is the odd trip that has been undertaken by Fred Brent and Dan Gollisky.

And there is a real wager of $5,000 against $1,000 that the men cannot accomplish it in three months, now in the hands of a stakeholder.

The wheelbarrow has been especially constructed, has pneumatic tired wheel, is light and particularly strong, and at least one of the two men must be pushed two-thirds of the entire distance.

In all but mountainous sections, where this is impossible, the men have agreed to take turn about in riding.

EVANGELIST PICKS CUBS TO WIN FLAG

WATERLOO, Iowa, July 10.—"It looks like the Cubs to me," said Rev. Billy Sunday, former star player under Anson and now evangelist here. "The Pittsburgers have a dandy team, but they have yet to face that slump that comes to all teams during a season. Chicago will fight it out for first with New York I believe. I base my conclusion on the pitching forces. With Brown, Reulbach and Overall going right the Cubs are unbeatable. They also have a better balanced team.

"I think the loss of Donlin and Bresnahan will lose McGraw the pennant this year, but even at that I think New York will finish ahead of Pittsburg.

"In the American League I pick the Athletics to fight it out with Cleveland. Philadelphia has a well-balanced team and steady pitchers. Cleveland makes me tired, however; their players get hurt too easily. We won the championship for Chicago with eleven men, and our catcher had his hands split half way down."

FANS WITNESS GOOD MID-JULY WRESTLING

That the wrestling game is coming into its own again was demonstrated at the Columbia Theatre last night, when a large outpouring of the fans gathered to witness the mid-July tournament under the auspices of one of the Greek societies for the benefit of the Greek Church. They were well repaid, as the matches staged were of a high order and brought together some of the best men in the game in this vicinity.

The first match, between Frank West of Boston and ...ais Blondell of Lowell, served as a good curtain-raiser, as it was full of action from start to finish, West winning in straight falls, the first in seven minutes and the second in thirteen.

The second match brought out the star bout of the evening, Sam Anderson of Norwood, the middleweight champion, facing his old rival, Jim Prokos of Lowell. They put up a fine exhibition of the fine points of the game, and were loudly cheered for their good work. Prokos did most of the forcing, and won the first fall in eighteen minutes with a toe hold and half nelson. The second bout was the best of the evening, and was hotly contested, the fall finally going to Anderson. In the third and deciding bout Prokos developed some rough house tactics and was cautioned several times by the referee. He finally secured a strangle hold which he refused to break and was disqualified and the bout and match awarded to Anderson.

In the third match Young Apollo was substituted at the last moment for Bauser, whom Cyclone Burns refused to meet because he was not heavy enough for him. It was a lively scrap for the one bout that it lasted, but the substitute claimed lack of condition and conceded the second bout and the match to Burns.

RED SOX NOW IN CLOSE CHASE AFTER LEADERS

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

DOVES' LONG LOSING RUN AT LAST BROKEN

NOT SO EASY AS VISITORS FIGURED ON

Once upon a time there was a team which was headed by a bright young man named Mr. Bresnahan, and at one period this gentleman was unable to accompany his team while it went on a trip around the circuit, visiting other cities also represented in this league.

Now when this team was sent away from its native heath, one large square built gent named Phelps was put in charge and Phelps's life with the team on that trip was only fairly good, according to the losses and wins of his club.

Mr. Phelps and his crew were scheduled to stop, among other cities, at Boston, and when Mr. Phelps's bunch landed in this town there were laughs of great glee and some of the players went so far as to remark, "Ha, ha, we shall fatten our handsome batting averages and swell our percentage during our sojourn in this town of culture, for Dovan's goats are playing at the South End grounds now, and they are very punk."

This was bad dope, for these men to become so boisterous, but some people will do foolish things.

On the occasions of their first meeting on this trip, the Boston team, which had been so humorously referred to as that Irish gent's angoras, managed to separate the visiting team from one large victory.

After that contest, Mr. Phelps, with a Billikin smile on his handsome countenance, said, "Well, accidents will happen."

The next day another "accident" occurred and one more victory was snatched from the poor visiting team. This made Mr. Phelps quite peevish and he dealt out a little heated conversation to his players saying, among other things, that he didn't propose to let any bunch of ball tossers, who have been playing the role of E. Z. Marks, mortify his team.

Three hundred dollars in cash prizes awarded to readers of next Sunday's AMERICAN to those who know how to use their heads and ten others.

FEW PLAYERS QUIT GAME IN PRIME

The lure of the diamond is so strong that few—very few—professional baseball players have retired from the game, as Fielder Jones did, in the heyday of his career.

Jones, who was the captain and manager of the Chicago White Sox, and once led them to victory in a world's series after winning the pennant in his own league, made a complete renunciation of the game. He said he was going to quit, and quit he did. All the persuasion and inducements in the world could not coax him to come back.

There have been a good many retirements from the big leagues, but not of the player's own preference, as in the case of Jones. The causes which take players from fast company are manifold.

Sometimes they grow too old, sometimes they never had the ability to keep up with the big leaguers, sometimes they are sold back to the minors, sometimes injuries abruptly end their career.

John Ward was another of the few who gave up baseball when he was on the top wave. He was manager and captain of the New Yorks when they won the Temple Cup in 1895 and could have served several years more of usefulness, both as a manager and a player. He was playing well at second base when he retired and was as skilful as ever with the bat.

Mike Donlin passed out as a diamond celebrity when riding on the highest wave of popularity. The stage claimed him and the diamond lost him. Like Jones and Ward, he was fond of the game; but as a thespian he thought he saw a brighter future than the game could provide, particularly as the New York Club would not come to his terms in the matter of salary. He has stuck to his guns, and the chances are that the national game no more will see this splendid hitter.

It wasn't money, however, with "Big Bill" Lange, who, when he was with the Chicago Nationals a few seasons back, was a fine batter, a fine fielder and a fine base runner. Lange was head and shoulders above the general run of ball players. He was such a good player that it was a pity that professional baseball had to lose him. He married a California girl, went into business, and has not played ball since. He, too, was in his prime as a player when he stepped down and out.

There's Nothing To It—By Tad

Notes of the Doves' Game

Konetchy raised ructions with the score by dropping one over the left field fence with one on. It certainly was a long wallop and put the Cardinals one run to the good.

* * *

Rudy Hulswitt had a more successful day in the field than he did on the occasion of the first game of this series.

* * *

Beaumont was right there in the hit column with a swell triple and a single.

* * *

Delehanty made a good catch of Starr's short fly in the seventh frame.

* * *

Coffey seems to be a first-class pinch hitter. He didn't do anything on his first two attempts yesterday, but on his third, with Beaumont on third and Stem on first, the youngster picked off a neat single.

* * *

Delehanty gave the fans considerable uneasiness in the ninth inning by getting a double to the right field fence. However, there were two dark and Hulswitt couldn't get a hit, so the hit went for the end book.

* * *

Here's hoping for the series.

* * *

There seems to be something lacking when Roger Bresnahan is on the job, but it's not been a fair trial of Phelps's managerial ability, for his pitchers have been performing like amateurs.

* * *

Becker was the real goods in the hit line with a triple and a single.

* * *

Coffey played another of his nifty games at shortstop and got a beauty hit at the critical moment.

* * *

Mattern allowed seven hits and managed to get through the entire game without the bad inning which usually makes its appearance when Matty is in the box.

* * *

The hits stand eight to seven in favor of the Doves.

* * *

It was a pretty lucky victory for the Doves in one sense, for Beebe took a balloon trip in the final inning after Mattern had singled, issued a pass to Becker, hit Starr and then donated another free ticket to Thomas, thus forcing Mattern with the winning tally. This is the first time a game has been won this way in Boston.

* * *

Thomas worked Beebe for three bases on balls and on this account was officially at bat only twice. This helps his batting average a great deal, for he didn't make a safe drive.

* * *

Sweeney's work at the third corner was right up to the minute, and a little more playing like that will make Bill the old favorite he used to be with the local bugs.

* * *

The Doves made a flying start by getting a pair of tallies in the opening inning. They only got two hits in this round, but matters were greatly aided by an error by Bobbie Byrne.

* * *

After the Cardinals had scored one run in the fifth and then put two more over in the next round off Konetchy's single with one on base the Cardinals looked like sure winners, but the very same inning the Doves took a turn at the run getting and tied up the score.

* * *

Becker's long triple to left field in the second inning went to waste, as there were two dark and Starr couldn't hit safely.

* * *

Phelps managed to fan on two occasions. So Beebe and Sweeney.

COCHATO TROTS A GREAT MILE AT READVILLE

READVILLE RACE TRACK, July 10.—Under the conditions the most wonderful mile made by a trotter this season was made yesterday by the stallion Cochato, 2:11½, when, with his owner, J. M. Johnson, he circled the course in 2:12½, the last half in 1:03½. It is three years since he was raced and secured his record in the futurity stakes. Since then he has been kept in the stud with heavy patronage. Previous to to-day he has been worked some miles this Spring at the Johnson farm in Ponkapoag, but the fastest was in 2:27.

For a trotter to come practically from nothing to a mile in 2:12½ was something unheard of before. He will be continued in training with the object of racing him at Columbus and Lexington the coming Fall, and horsemen who saw him perform to-day predict a record of 2:06 at least.

Jimmy Carpenter worked Rebecca G., 2:16¼, along with Cochato in the fast mile, being timed in 2:13¼, last half in 1:03¼. She starts at Woonsocket next week. There has been added to the Carpenter string the stallion Silence, 2:25¼, and Dirl, 2:18¼. Other notable trials by trotters and pacers soon going to the races and colts with Futurity engagements during the morning were as follows:

George Moore with The Sailorman, 2:20¼, in 2:18¼; Henry Titer with George Leonard's two-year-old, in 2:21¼, half in 1:08, and Titer also drove the three-year-old Foros in 2:19, half in 1:08; John Young worked his two-year-old Biala in 2:24, half in 1:09½. Johnny Quinn has arrived at the track with Arnold Lawson's matinee string.

GELDINGS WIN CUP RACES.

It is rather a curious fact that though the Walnut Hall cup race at Lexington was established twelve years ago, and has since been annually contested, it has never yet been won by a stallion or mare, although many trotters of the male and female sexes have endeavored to capture it.

WILL GET EASTERN HORSES.

Phoenix, Ariz., will catch some of the Eastern horses this Fall, having opened a couple of $5,000 purses with a 3 per cent. entry.

AGED HORSE SHOW WINNER.

Fides Stanton, 2:13¼, now twenty-three years old, was a winner at the recent international horse show in London.

MARTIN SHERIDAN WILL COMPETE

NEW YORK, July 10.—More than 200 entries have been already received for the big athletic carnival of the American Athletic Club at Celtic Park, Long Island City, to-morrow, and many more are expected before the list closes.

Emilio Lunghi, the Italian champion, who will meet Howard Gissing and Harry Hillman in a special 600-yard race is anxious to redeem himself for his defeat at Brighton Beach.

Martin J. Sheridan, the all-around champion, will make his first appearance since breaking all world's records in the weight events, and John J. Flanagan, Matt McGrath, A. P. Gillies, P. McDonald, J. Duncan and Con Walsh will be among the weight throwers.

MORAN ON SCRATCH IN REVERE RACES

Jimmy Moran has a big task on his hands to-night to beat Eddie Root and Freddie Hill in the three cornered 25 mile motor paced race at the Revere track.

The crack Chelsea rider has conceded two laps to Root and three to Hill in the long grind and will have to make up a lot of ground before he can get on even terms with them. If the effort doesn't cost him a pile of energy he will have a chance to go through and cop the prize. Jimmy is determined to get back in his championship form which seemed to have deserted him this season as he has been beaten right along but the more often he rides the better he comes along and he's about due for some sensational work.

An event which will draw much attention is the attempt of Hugh MacLean to ride a mile behind pace in less than 1:30 without any training.

The test is the result of a bet MacLean had with Jimmy Moran that he could do the trick and both put up a $50 note to back up his contention.

It will be Eddie Root's first appearance for a long time at the beach oval and the Melrose boy has a big following and is riding like a veteran behind the motors. He has wonderful speed which he showed as a sprinter and takes naturally to pace as he won a big race down at Newark the other night.

There will be a couple of amateur events to open the program of bike sport.

MANY YACHTS START IN CITY POINT RACES

The Columbia Yacht Club will hold its annual open race off the clubhouse, City Point, this afternoon, with the start at 3 o'clock. Besides the regular interclub classes racing will be provided for the catboats and the dories.

WHEN THE BULLS WON THE FIGHT—The SUNDAY AMERICAN will contain a series of the most remarkable photographs ever taken of Spain's national sport.

Baseball News and Notes

Chief Meyers is very strongly in favor of the agitation for Americans to drink light wines. The chief has a vineyard out in California, upon the profits of which he hopes some day to make a good living.

* * *

"The people in this country are so darned simple," says Chief, "that they won't buy these California wines merely because they are cheaper than the foreign stuff. We are making just as fine claret in California as ever came from France, but you cannot make the consumer understand that."

* * *

Jesse Tannehill, the popular Dayton (Ky.) southpaw, has been refused by the Southern League. Manager Cantillon of the Washington team offered Tannehill and two other players to either Memphis or Little Rock in exchange for a pick on their talent later on, but the bid was turned down.

* * *

Of all the spoiled children Ty Cobb is about the worst. On two occasions when the Georgia whirlwind tried to go all the way around on infield hits he was caught, and the way Tyrus beefed was painful. When Cobb returned to the bench after banishment from the game someone in the box said something, and Cobb picked up a handful of dirt and threw it at his tormentors.

* * *

It is hard to see where the great Lajoie has anything on Terry Turner as a second baseman at the clip Turner is going. Against the Sox the cotton top was the whole works.

* * *

Abstein of the Pirates will probably be out of the game for a few days as a result of an injury to his finger. Allan Storke is a capable substitute at first base.

* * *

Ban Johnson has been East investigating Washington's charges against Umpire Perrine. Ban says the charges are groundless. Ban will never admit an umpire is in error until midwinter.

* * *

Manager Billy Murray of the Phillies has purchased Catcher Hanlon of the Steubenville team. He is needed to understudy Charlie Dooin, as Catcher Jacklitsch, the Phillies' other backstop, is out of the game with a broken thumb.

Those who are ready to concede the pennant to the Pirates should remember that there are almost 100 games yet to be played.

* * *

Willie Keeler denies the story that he will not play with the Highlanders again this year. He says his injured leg is rapidly getting well and that he will be in harness again in about two weeks.

* * *

"I wouldn't part with Manager McAleer for any money," said Owner Hedges of the St. Louis Browns a year ago. "He is the best in the business." Now Hedges declines to affirm or deny the rumor that McAleer will be succeeded by Jack O'Connor. The Browns were pennant factors for a while last season, while they are tail-enders at present, with St. Louis fans grumbling and disinterested. As in other things, time works many changes in baseball.

* * *

Jack Miller, Pittsburg's young second baseman, continues to travel at a terrific gait. This fellow's success, both as a batsman and an infielder, has had a great deal to do with the Pirate triumphs of the season.

* * *

Gus Dorner is holding his own with the Kansas City team, standing next to "Vinegar Bill" Essick. Gus has won 4 out of 8 games pitched.

* * *

"Chick" Fraser, the former Cub pitcher, has sold his celebrated chicken farm, occupying a tract of several acres. The consideration was $3,100. As the result of a trip to Idaho several months ago Fraser is said to have decided to abandon raising chickens for raising alfalfa, having purchased a considerable tract of land in that State.

* * *

Hugh Jennings now says he will keep Claude Rossman. The gentle Claudie has been hitting well of late and has recaptured his old job on Detroit's initial pad.

* * *

"Rip" Connell, the Tufts College player who was with the Boston Nationals in 1903, has been appointed sub-master at Lynn Classical High School.

GOLF GOSSIP NEWS OF THE LINKS

Miss K. Duncan of Brae-Burn has a rival at hitting birds with a golf ball. A golfer who visited the Country Club at Kansas City, Mo., was a little surprised after being cordially received at the club to have a bird fly over to meet what would have been one of his longest drives. The bird and the ball met in mid-air, and both dropped dead as a door nail to the fair green.

The eleventh annual State championship of Connecticut, which is now in progress at the Greenwich Country Club, is proving a great success. The playing of the course in 74 by B. P. Merriam was the feature of the qualification round. He was better by one stroke than any other player, going out and coming in in 37.

The sectional team matches arranged by the Massachusetts Golf Association will have reached the third round of play after July 15. A great deal of interest is being manifested in these contests and the two-ball foursomes that are part of the play are greatly enjoyed by all.

The ten invitation tournaments which are being held at the Myopia Hunt Club this season are being well attended by the golfers of the Salem, Essex County and Nahant golf clubs, the only clubs that may participate in the tourneys. Three of the meetings have already been run off, and the fourth, which comes Saturday, July 17, is to be foursomes, and the entries will be made by pairs.

While the schoolboys are fighting for the championship out to Commonwealth to-day, the older golfers will be playing in the open tournament at Wollaston. Low scoring this year will not be so easily accomplished as it was last, for the course has been stiffened up a little during the Spring. The three parallel bunkers on the way to the first and second holes will undoubtedly catch many an unlucky slice.

The ardent endeavor of the schoolboys to be square with themselves and their scores in this year's meeting has resulted in a most successful tournament. This year no course records were broken by the young enthusiasts and moreover there were no scores under bogey.

In a four-ball match as ordinarily played, when the best ball only counts on either side, and when the players are not evenly matched all round, the poorer player has the uncomfortable feeling that he is hopelessly out of it. This difficulty has been overcome by President Taft, who has a method of his own for scoring, which is perhaps not as frequently used as the former way, but has many very good features. It is simple merely adding both players' scores on either side together. For example, one pair's scores aggregated eight, the other's nine, the former wins the hole.

The resort courses have in a good many instances opened their season by holding a tournament. Along the North Shore we find Tedesco and Clifton and southward are Cohasset, Plymouth and Woods Hole.

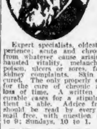

Many of the schoolboy golfers felt that one very formidable player and likely winner of the tournament, was done away with when Paul Tewkesbury of Newton decided that he would not be able to attend the event this year, and did not enter.

A party of Boston golfers who have just returned from Maplewood, N. H., from a pleasure trip, found the course up there in fairly good condition, considering the fact that it has only been opened for a week.

The complete destruction of the Fall River Golf Club will upset the club event planned for next Saturday, however, it is said that through all the confusion of the fire the iron clubs kept their heads.

Tomorrow will see the golfers flocking to the Wollaston Golf Club to take part in the open tournament held there. The many club events of last Saturday and Monday have given the players a keener zest for open competition and the usual large field will be on hand.

ETROIT AND ATHLETICS FIGHT FOR FIRST PLACE

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

KETCHEL SIGNS UP FOR FIGHT WITH LANGFORD

Who Wouldn't Take a Crack on the Knob for $6?---By Bud Fisher.

TWO BIG ATHLETIC MEETS ON TO-DAY FOR THE BOYS OF BOSTON

The boys of Charlestown and Dorchester are all ready to-day for the first two in the series of twenty-one athletic meets started by the Boston-1915 committee. Two o'clock this afternoon sees the contestants in the Sullivan square playground in Charlestown and on Franklin Field in Dorchester. The meet on Franklin Field is in charge of John O'Reilly. Edmund Hynes is in charge of the meet in Charlestown.

For the past two days Charlestown boys have been thronging the Bunker Hill Boys' Club, making out their entries for the meets. A committee of fifteen boys has been at work spreading the news of the meet, and helping other boys with their entries. Special interest has been shown at the Warren Bridge Floating Bathhouse and at the Dewey Beach Bathing Station, from both of which places a large number of boys have enrolled.

The boys' committee is divided into two groups, senior and junior. The boys in the senior group who have been at work organizing the meet are Stephen Poore, Edward Maguire, Ralph Stidstone, John Carr, George Cummings, Norman Bonney, Richard McLaughlin, Arthur Laurie; the juniors are Fred Cummings, Warren Lively, William Sullivan, William McLaughlin, William McVarish, Fred Calandrella and Vincent Delliveneri.

Entries for the meets are evenly divided among the running and jumping events. The running broad jump and the dashes, 50 and 100 yards, have proved specially popular. The younger boys have been practising with the eight pound shot with good results.

The preparations for the meet in Charlestown have had the advantage of support from two well-known local athletes, Dr. Edward M. Plummer, who is remembered for his feats as a swimmer, and Dan Hurley, the Harvard football captain of 1905.

In Dorchester the entries have been made largely under the supervision of Mr. O'Reilly. The events at Franklin Field are run off close to the Municipal Building, which is used for dressing room purposes. At Sullivan square two large dressing room tents have been pitched by the Boston Playground Association for the use of the Charlestown boys.

No admission fee is charged at either the meet in Charlestown or in Dorchester. It was the hope of the Boston-1915 Committee in planning these games that considerable local pride would be aroused by the meets in each district, and that by the end of the Summer, when the final meet of all districts is held at Wood Island Park, there will be a general response from all quarters of the city.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—All chances of a return match with Stanley Ketchel failing him, Billy Papke will proceed to England and Paris after his fight with Fireman Jim Flynn in Los Angeles, according to Louis Blot, Papke's local representative. "If Ketchel is matched with Sam Langford, there will be no legitimate opponents left hereabouts for him to meet," said Papke. "Now, having received several offers from Paris clubs, Billy will accept them, and leave for London shortly after his fight with Flynn."

NEVADA TOWN IN FIGHT GAME WITH BIG BID

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Ely, Nevada, the latest mining town to break into the boxing game, comes through strongly in support of its ability to pull off the $25,000 match arranged between Ketchel and Langford by Tex Hall.

A message from the Nevada town states that the bid is guaranteed by twenty-two leading merchants of Ely and that every one in the town—capitalists, merchants, and everyone else—is back of the scheme and that the individual notes which have been signed and delivered to the First National Bank of Ely are good enough for the bank to issue a deposit certificate for over $50,000.

This could according to the Ely dispatch, easily be increased to $100,000 if this amount were necessary to bring the crack middleweights to battle on the Ely field.

Not only are the "sports" of the town back of the proposition, but all citizens are willing to put up their money to bring the fighters to Ely regardless of their interest in the game of fisticuffs, says the Ely news distributor, and it appears as if the newest fight centre of Nevada was prepared to put through a boxing exhibition that will put it on the pugilistic map along side of Goldfield and Tonopah.

Ketchel and his manager have nothing to say in regard to the match. Both are satisfied that hey had made a good bargain with Hall, the Nevada promoter, and they were also satisfied that Langford would be well pleased with the one-fifth of the prize money which they had allowed him a chance to win.

"Everything will be all right," said Ketchel. "I will go away for a little while to rest and will be in Nevada on the day called for in the articles. I need a rest, but I will have plenty of time before August 6."

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Al Kubiak called off his fight with Sam Langford. The Michigan boxer got cold feet.

* * *

The twenty three-minute rounds contest arranged between the Welsh lightweight, Fred Welsh, and Young Josephs of Aldgate, will be decided at Mountain Ash, Cardiff, Wales, on Monday, July 12.

* * *

What seemed like a stumbling block to the match between Johnny Summers and Jimmy Britt has been overcome, and the admirers of the Canning Town lad will see their hero box at home on July 31.

* * *

Grover Hayes, the lightweight boxer, has left for his home in Chicago. Hayes was summoned home as his brother is very ill, suffering from a severe attack of appendicitis. The little fighter will probably stay in Chicago until the Fall.

* * *

Billy Papke has been matched to meet Jim Flynn at Los Angeles in a ten-round bout in place of Ketchel, before Tom McCarey's club on July 17, during Elks' week. Owing to Ketchel's injured hand the Britt entry will be unable to start.

* * *

George Monroe, whose defeat by Terry McGovern caused the alliance between Terry and Sam Harris, is back from Savannah, looking prosperous and healthy. George has been successfully operating a boxing school in the Southern town and will return in September to take charge of his business. Monroe says the game is on the boom there, and he expects to hold some high-class shows during the Winter.

* * *

Billy Roche, who refereed the Cross-Hyland and Ketchel-Papke fights, is going to bring Lew Powell East in the Fall. Powell won all the way in a twenty-round battle with Young Erne. Powell is a fast two-handed fighter, but lacks the wallop. He may show up well in ten-round bouts.

* * *

Joe Thomas has decided to quit the ring for good. The former welterweight champion tried a few days ago to get back into the game again, but lost to Tommy Sullivan. He had intended boxing next Tuesday, Fred Douglass having offered him a match with either Harry Lewis or Harry Mansfield. Yesterday Fred received a letter from Thomas telling of his decision to quit the ring. But according to Thomas there is another reason that may have a bearing on his decision. Joe has taken a knockout from Cupid, and is going to marry in the near future a sister of Jimmie Gardner, also a well-known boxer.

* * *

Leach Cross, says there has been a painful mistake made by the press in saying he received $370 for his end of the Hyland fight. Leach says the correct figures were $376.60. That "extra" will help buy polish for the dentist chair.

* * *

Monte Attell's next opponent may be Al Delmont of Boston. Johnny Mooney, his manager, is negotiating with the Western promoters, and the chances for a match with Monte look good.

* * *

Johnny Loftus, who trained Cross for his fight with Hyland, remained on the coast to train Johnny Frayne for his coming battle with Young Corbett, which takes place on July 17. They will go twenty-five rounds at 135 pounds at 10 o'clock.

* * *

Billy Papke wants another crack at Ketchel, and wants the battle to go to a finish. Papke is not making a very big yell over the decision, but says the pictures which were taken of the battle will show the public at large who was entitled to the verdict. Bill says he can beat the "Assassin" in any kind of going. Send them to a finish. Until they do the question of supremacy will always be in doubt.

* * *

Sam Langford and Jimmy Walsh may appear at the next show of the National Club of Pittsburg. Both fighters have been made offers to meet men of their weight and each has accepted.

* * *

Tommy Burns, the American fighter, continues to be the big drawing card throughout the colonies. He appeared at Townsville, in Queensland, with the Townsville Minstrels, before a packed house. Burns said he hoped within a year to have again fought Jack Johnson, and he wished to return to Townsville as champion—an announcement that was greeted with much applause. He has been cleaning up nicely in his theatrical work.

* * *

In a cable Freddie Welsh said: "Am training hard for my bout with Young Josephs July 12. Am fit and will win. Undecided to accept McCarey's offer to box Nelson. May take Summers for lightweight championship of England in October."

* * *

Packey McFarland is trying to hold Nelson to the original agreement which was signed in Chicago in April. The articles call for 133 pounds, weigh in at 6 o'clock, the fight to take place at 2:30 in the afternoon; Nelson to get all the picture privileges and the money to be divided 75 and 25.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOR SPORT FANS

HERE IS ONE THAT HAD A LOT of the fans talking after the game at the Doves' Park and the answer also goes for Blake, Collins, A Fan and Two Rooters.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
In the ninth inning of yesterday's game Boston was at bat with the bases full and none out. Thomas drew a base on balls, forcing in the winning run, but instead of going to first he started for the players' bench, later going to the sack when called on by Bowerman to do so.
Could he have been called out for not starting to first or for running out of line? What is the rule covering this? REGULAR.

There is no rule which says how much time a man may take going to first on a base on balls, or what route he shall go. He could not be called out for running out of line, even if he went to first via third and second bases, but undoubtedly would have been declared out for delaying the game, the umpire being the sole judge of this. The player's own manager would likely have him sent to the bug house for observation if he attempted a stunt of that kind in a game.

Baseball Editor, Boston American:
The Whirlwinds, of South Boston, would like to arrange games with any eight to ten year old teams in the State, giving half the traveling expenses. The lineup is P. Casey, J. Ready, M. Flaherty, M. Berger, W. Clancy, A. Lynch, M. Frankel, G. Gallagher and H. Brady. Please print this challenge in your paper. MORRIS FRANKEL, Manager.

Sure thing, we'll print it, Morris. But tell me, do your mammas send nurses along on these trips, and what are you and Berger doing in that bunch?

THERE IS A YOUNG MAN IN Lawrence who thinks pretty well of himself. After reading his letter over several times I can't make up my mind whether he is in training as a pugilist or a humorist. Help, help! Here it is:

Sporting Editor, Boston American.
Young Jordan, the Lawrence Giant, is ready to fight five men in one night and they are Packy McFarland, Freddy Welsh, Dick Hyland, Johnny Thompson and Young Corbett. I am ready to bet $3,000 a side that I can knock any one of them out inside of ten rounds. Young Jordan stands 6 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 135 pounds and has a reach of 80 inches and has a knock-out punch with him all the time. If they are afraid to meet me then I will be ready to meet Battling Nelson for the lightweight championship of the world for a bet of $3,000 a side. Yours truly, YOUNG JORDAN.

Didn't you overlook a bet, Shorty? Why not include Johnson, Jeffries, Langford, Ketchel and a few other of the easy ones in your list? By the way, did you ever see $3,000 all at one time, or a set of boxing gloves except in a sporting goods store?

THE TRAVELING CHAMPIONSHIP is a new one, although from present indications the National and American titles appear to be traveling towards Pittsburg and Philadelphia. Here's a chance for teams that want to compete for the traveling championship of New England:

Cambridge City nine, traveling champions of New England, have dates open away from home. Portland, Me.; Biddeford, Wakefield and Newport, R. I., preferred. Cambridge has beaten Nashua, N. H.; Keene, N. H.; Canton, Lowell Ind., etc. Write, wire or phone Manager Slocomb, Cambridge Western Union, Cambridge, Mass.

R. B. CHELSEA—THE WEIGHT limits in the various pugilistic classes was printed in this column last week, but here they are again. Cut this out and paste it in your hat:

Bantam, 115 pounds; feather, 122 pounds; lightweight, 133 pounds; welter, 142 pounds; middle, 158 pounds; light-heavy, 175 pounds; heavy, over 175 pounds.

Straight Dope, Boston American,
Now that Ketchel has shown by his fight with Papke that he is not the man to defeat Johnson, why do the fight promotors not arrange a chance for Sandy Ferguson to take up the white man's burden and take the title away from the big negro? In my opinion he is the only white man, barring Jeffries, who would have a chance with Johnson.
GEORGE MARTIN.

Back up, George, your dope is very, very bad. Sandy wouldn't have a chance to beat Johnson or any other good fighter. His bout at the Armory with Joe Jeannette showed that Chelsea's stubborn child is a member of the down and out club and couldn't beat an egg. Neither could Jeannette, for that matter. And why is it the white man's burden? White and black men look alike when they get into the ring to fight.

THE BOSTON TYPOS WILL PLAY the Holy Name Club of South Boston at the American League grounds Monday at 3:30, and Wednesday afternoon will meet the Everett Independents at the same place.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE IS tightening up in great shape, and the runaway Tigers have been backed into a corner and almost—get that almost?—headed off. It took a long time to do it, and there was much speculation as to which club would be the one to do the heading. When the Philadelphia team got into its stride, baseball critics who had sized up the Quakers' pitching staff, foresaw trouble ahead for Jennings and his men. The Tigers have possibly a better fielding team, but in addition to a bunch of steady-going and hard-hitting players the Athletics have the pitchers, and that is why the game in Detroit this afternoon is a fight for the leadership.

GREAT DOINGS IN NEW YORK THIS afternoon when the curb brokers of Boston and Gotham line up for the annual ball game. The Boston team, with forty-two rooters, reached the big town this morning on the Yale. The Boston lineup will be as follows: Cronin, catcher; Baker, pitcher; Dealey, first base; Murphy, second base; Dasha, shortstop; White, third base; J. Cronin, right field; Coleman, centre field; Gagen, left field; substitute battery, Kilduff, catcher, and Walter Brown, pitcher.

BROCK HOPES TO BOX NELSON

CHICAGO, July 10.—Tom McGinty of Buffalo, manager of Phil Brock, the Cleveland lightweight, is in the city awaiting Brock's arrival, and together they will journey to Los Angeles, where Manager McCarey has promised the young Ohio battler a chance with some of the real good ones, including possibly a ten-round chance at Battling Nelson, if the latter's go Tuesday night with Ad Wolgast comes out all right.

"Brock is immensely improved," said McGinty, "and I have great hopes of him. He is a bright, clean young fellow and developing a punch that is a wonder. He can make 130 pounds if he has to, and is willing to meet any of them up to 133."

BRITT BACK OF NEW FIGHT PLAN

NEW YORK, July 10.—Silent Charley Harvey, who is still looking after the interests of Al Kaufman here in the East says that the fine Italian hand of Willus Britt is behind the scheme to shut off the proposed Kaufman-Johnson fight.

"You know when Johnson was here in New York," whispered Charley through his drooping palm, "he received a wire from Britt and the very next day began to stall about the go with Kaufman. I have an idea that Willus told him to break it, as the Ketchel match later would be worth just twice as much, as Johnson hasn't been in Frisco since he beat Burns.

"Well, now that Ketchel's showing against Papke was a frost, I should think that Johnson and Kaufman would be the card. They are steering Johnson wrong saying that the Ketchel card is the better one. Kaufman can beat Ketchel, and as for Johnson, why, we'll have to wait and see."

CUBS, IN HOLE FOR PITCHERS, WIRE TO BROWN

CHICAGO, July 10.—In all probability Mordecai Brown, the Cubs' star pitcher, will leave to join the team at Boston on Monday if the physicians pronounce his wife out of danger. Ed. Reulbach will not be able to be with the champions until the end of next week.

Secretary Thomas received a telegram from Manager Chance yesterday saying that he needed both pitchers badly and to do all in his power to have the star twirlers join the team in Boston.

Brown consulted the physicians about leaving, but was told that his wife still was in a serious condition and that it would not be safe for him to leave for a couple of days.

SULLIVAN TWINS MAKE BIG HIT

The Sullivan Twins, Mike and Jack, are an awful hit out West. They train together, sing and dance like one and manage each other with the same care and attention that a new mother gives her first born. Jack gets a match and Mike says:

"Jack, you stay right here; I'll fix the weight and see what these fellows will give. You start to work right away; do over eight miles on the road; box six rounds and skip the rope 500 times."

Mike is the cheese when Jack gets a go, and Jack does everything Mike suggests without a whimper. Maybe two weeks later Mike gets a match. Jack is Johnny at the rathole then, and is king.

"Mike, I'll get the best offer possible. Don't go in swimming at all to-day. You may catch cold. Stay indoors and do a little light work. Don't touch the steak in the ice box. You just eat some eggs and toast. I'll attend to that chunk of beef. I'm going over to see the manager now, and don't stop working until I return."

Mike obeys like a trained dog.

IN A WHEELBARROW.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 10.—From Portland to Boston, pushing a wheelbarrow, following as near as possible the west, the southern and eastern coast line of North America, is the odd trip that has been undertaken by Fred Brent and Dan Gullisky.

And there is a real wager of $5,000 against $1,000 that the men cannot accomplish it in three months, now in the hands of a stakeholder.

The wheelbarrow has been especially constructed, has pneumatic tired wheel, is light and particularly strong, and at least one of the two men must be pushed two-thirds of the entire distance.

In all but mountainous sections, where this is impossible, the men have agreed to take turn about in riding.

EVANGELIST PICKS CUBS TO WIN FLAG

WATERLOO, Iowa, July 10.—"It looks like the Cubs to me," said Rev. Billy Sunday, former star player under Anson and now evangelist here. "The Pittsburgers have a dandy team, but they have yet to face that slump that comes to all teams during a season. Chicago will fight it out for first with New York I believe. I base my conclusion on the pitching forces. With Brown, Reulbach and Overall going right the Cubs are unbeatable. They also have a better balanced team.

"I think the loss of Donlin and Bresnahan will lose McGraw the pennant this year, but even at that I think New York will finish ahead of Pittsburg.

"In the American League I pick the Athletics to fight it out with Cleveland. Philadelphia has a well-balanced team and steady pitchers. Cleveland makes me tired, however; their players get hurt too easily. We won the championship for Chicago with eleven men, and our catcher had his hands split half way down."

FANS WITNESS GOOD MID-JULY WRESTLING

That the wrestling game is coming into its own again was demonstrated at the Columbia Theatre last night, when a large outpouring of the fans gathered to witness the mid-July tournament under the auspices of one of the Greek societies for the benefit of the Greek Church. They were well repaid, as the matches staged were of a high order and brought together some of the best men in the game in this vicinity.

The first match, between Frank West of Boston and Louis Blondell of Lowell, served as a good curtain-raiser, as it was full of action from start to finish. West winning in straight falls, the first in seven minutes and the second in thirteen.

The second match brought out the star bout of the evening, Sam Anderson of Norwood, the middleweight champion, facing his old rival, Jim Prokos of Lowell. They put up a fine exhibition of the fine points of the game, and were loudly cheered for their good work. Prokos did most of the forcing, and won the first fall in eighteen minutes with a toe hold and half nelson. The second bout was the best of the evening, and was hotly contested, the fall finally going to Anderson. In the third and deciding bout Prokos developed some rough house tactics and was cautioned several times by the referee. He finally secured a strangle hold which he refused to break and was disqualified and the bout and match awarded to Anderson.

In the third match Young Apollo was substituted at the last moment for Bauser, whom Cyclone Burns refused to meet because he was not heavy enough for him. It was a lively scrap for the one bout that it lasted, but the substitute claimed lack of condition and conceded the second bout and the match to Burns.

He Handed Out A Strong Talk to His Penelope

By KENNETT HARRIS

"ARE your eyes still shut, Perciva'?" called Penelope from the other side of the library portieres.

"Yes," said Percival. "Hurry up and put me out of my misery. You said about five minutes, and you've been hours and hours."

"Well, I'm coming now," said Penelope. "But you must keep your eyes shut. There! Now you may look."

Percival stared wildly, and then, pressing his hand to his heart, fell back among the sofa cushions.

"Do you like it?" she asked, turning herself slowly around.

"Do I like it!" said Percival, emphatically ambiguous.

"Yes, do you?"

"Do I?"

"Yes, you silly-billy," said Penelope, a trifle impatiently. "That's what I asked you."

"But it isn't finished yet."

"It is, too. How absurd! Do you suppose I would put it on to show you before it is finished?"

"Then what's the use of me expressing an opinion?" said Percival. "If it's done, it's done, and that's all there is to it."

'Twas a Matter of Taste

"Then you don't like it," said Penelope, coldly.

"I didn't say so," replied Percival. "You know, sweetheart, I'm not a dress expert."

"It's entirely a matter of taste," said Penelope, loftily. "If you will excuse me now——"

"Don't go," begged Percival. "I haven't had time to get all the points yet. Honest! Turn around again and let me get the effect from the back. And now sit down on this lounge, and let's talk about something else?"

"Why don't you like it?" asked Penelope, ignoring the last request.

"It's fierce," replied Perival. "That's why."

"Penelope controlled herself beautifully. "I presume that you object to the style?"

"Partly that," answered Percival, doggedly.

"And partly the trimming?" suggested Penelope, sweetly.

"It may be the very latest whoop from gay Parce, but I'd rip it all off if I had my say," declared Percival.

"And you object to the colors?"

"Did you have to get that color, darling?" asked Percival.

"I'm afraid that I haven't a very keen sense of humor," said Penelope. "I feel almost certain that you intend to be funny, but you don't seem so one bit to me."

"You go right ahead and say what you think, if it's going to relieve your mind, little one," advised Percival.

"Do you think it's good form for a gentleman to tell a lady that her gown is hideous?" Penelope's eyes were flashing. "I do not," replied Percival, promptly.

"If anybody thinks you don't know clothes and the art of wearing them, I'll give him a due bill for another think, payable at sight. If any person or persons entertain the idea that you're making mistakes about what suits you down to the ground and a yard trailing, they're darn poor entertainers—that's all I have to say."

How He Squared Himself

"But you said that you didn't like it."

"I don't," said Percival. 'I detest it. I'd like to take it and sink it fathoms deep beneath the waves. When I think of you going down to the shore with a couple of trunksful of dresses like that, or almost as stunning, and I not there to look after you and keep the puppies away, I'm just crazy, and that's all there is about it."

Penelope made a little rush to the lounge and threw her arms around his neck. "Oh!" she cried. "I thought you really didn't like it, and I had gone to so much trouble over it * * * and fitted and fitted and fitted and * * *

(Percival, see what you're doing.)

"And you really think it's becoming to me?"

"It's so becoming that it makes me sick," said Percival.

GOOD TRADING ON CUPID'S EXCHANGE ☘ By NELL BRINKLEY

"My love hath all my heart and I have his"—And that's the way the market opens and closes on Cupid's Exchange.

"MY love hath all my heart and I have his."

That's all there is to the Cupid's Exchange. A lover and his bit-lassie lean across from one another in the moonlight, or in the warm noon sun, or in the fluttering light of a camp fire—and while they lean—(maybe it's that they lean too close)—all the sounds in the world around seem to fall and range themselves into one deep-throated, world-wide melody. And then the lover suddenly finds out that the bit-lassie's eyes are very deep, that her lips are very sleek and shiny, that her hair blows across the dimple in her check in a way that makes one's fingers to itch, that her car just comes level with his heart, that he wishes he had a line on what she was thinking about that minute, that he hopes she's in a solemn mood and will listen—listen sure!

And then, next thing you know, he's said it out brave and plain, "I love you, Betty Jane—and here's my heart—will you give me yours, and love me back?"

And old Cupid holds down a little place where he can hear and watches the ticker that records every heart-beat.

Cupid's Exchange is a very simple thing, but the complications that rise up after, under the gold dust of their rose-littered path, like the boulders under a white mountain road where the sand wears off! Why, it's as mixed up then as the picture of a Wall Street that a Betty has in her mind.

"My love has all my heart and I have his"—And that's the way the market opens.

Sulky Women Are Shunned by Their Friends

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE other day I had what might be rightly termed a "heart-to-heart" talk with a woman friend and she was in the depths of woe.

"I am a miserable woman," she sobbed. "I have the utmost contempt for myself and yet I cannot control myself when these ugly moods come upon me."

There was nothing I could do, save listen sympathetically, so I let her talk on.

"Here am I," she said, "a woman who has neither youth, looks, wit, money nor charm. The only way in which I can make myself liked is by being cheerful and kind to my friends, and yet when I feel in an ugly humor there is nothing that I do not say. I am sulky, unwilling to oblige anyone, and if I do an unselfish act I do it in such a way as to rob it of its value."

Control an Unruly Tongue

Of course she made things out to be worse than they were—she was in the mood to do that—but I knew that to an extent her words were true.

"What do you think about it?" she asked after a pause. "Give me your honest opinion—I can stand it."

"I don't think little of you, Mary," I answered, "but I do think that you would be a much happier woman if you could learn to control that unruly tongue of yours. You do not have to have youth nor wit nor money to win the love of your friends, but you do have to have kindness of heart and gentleness of speech.

"When you sulk, people at first feel concerned and sorry for you, but that soon wears off and they grow impatient and bored by your moods."

Mary nodded her head thoughtfully, and I think she means to try very hard to control herself.

There are hundreds of others in her predicament—people who crave affection and yet do little to earn it.

You Must Give to Get

You cannot get anything, even love, unless you are willing to give something in return.

Why should you expect people to like you when you give them no reason to do so? Love cannot thrive on cross words and sulks; it wants sweetness and kindness.

The sulky person always realizes his mood; he has not the excuse of the hot tempered person, who flies unexpectedly into his rages.

The sulky person is somewhat like the little girl who, after she had cried and stormed for a while, put her head into the room and sobbed, "Isn't some one going to tell me to stop?"

The only prescription I can give the sulk is a dose of common sense.

The Diary of a Mermaid

By WEX JONES

RATHER dull down here lately, but nice and cool. I don't know how those termaids manage to live in all the heat and dust, and with all the clothes they wear, too. Went out on the sand today for an air bath. Stayed too long in the air, I think, as I have a headache.

The neighbor's dogfish kept me awake nearly all night with its barking, and when I went over to complain the brute nearly killed my poor ittle-bittle catfish. I know how I'll get even, though. I'm going to let out all our chicken lobsters and they'll soon scratch up the next door garden.

Hairdresser actually charged me half a dollar for a seafoam shampoo, although he can get all the seafoam he wants for nothing, merely by taking a jar to the surface on a rough day.

These directoire scales are getting worse and worse. All the mermaids now look like garfish. However, it is better than looking like a porgy.

Went in the air again to-day. Was combing my hair on a rock when I heard a splash and saw something in the water moving in my direction. Thought at first it was a seal, but a second look showed me that it was a terman in a blue bathing suit. I dived off the rock and disappeared.

As I expected, papa made an awful kick about the new things I bought. A mermaid has a sort of unhappy life. Sometimes I think of running away and living in the air for the rest of my life. I had a bluefish that matched the shade of my new shell earrings and it's lost, and the fools in the store can't match it exactly. Can't match a bluefish! I feel like crying.

The terman came along as I was crying. He got quite close before I saw him, and he said, "It is real."

I said, "Don't look at me as if I were an escaped freak," but all he said was, "What a pippin!" What's a pippin, I wonder?

Saw the terman again to-day. He wanted me to give up being a mermaid and marry him and settle down on land.

"Think of dresses," said he.

"Pooh," said I.

"And think of the hats," said he, suddenly—"those big ones, you know."

That's right—you can't wear a hat in the water.

So I said "Yes."

The Birth of the Butterflies

By ANDREW LANG

THE dawn is smiling on the dew that covers
The tearful roses; lo, the little lovers
That kiss the buds, and all the flutterings
In jasmine bloom, and privet, of white wings,
That go and come, and fly, and peep and hide,
With muffled music, murmured far and wide!
Ah, Springtime! when we think of all the lays
That dreamy lovers send to dreamy Mays,
Of the fond hearts within a billet bound,
Of all the soft silk paper that pens wound,
The messages of love that mortals write,
Filled with intoxication of delight;
Written in April, and before the May time,
Shredded and flown, playthings for the wind's playtime,
We dream that all white butterflies above,
Who seek through clouds or waters souls to love,
And leave their lady mistress in despair,
To flit to flowers, as kinder and more fair,
Are but torn love-letters, that through the skies
Flutter, and float, and change to butterflies.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ASK HER TO HELP YOU

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man twenty-three years of age and am in love with a poor but very intelligent girl of eighteen. She associates with very refined and well-educated people. Now, as I do not speak English correctly, I think she is annoyed once in a while by my presence. Would you be kind enough to tell me how I can acquire the English language, so as to pronounce and set the words rightly.

J. B.

WHY not go to her and frankly tell her that you are anxious to speak correctly, and ask her advice and help. She may offer to teach you. If you are really worthy in other ways, I do not believe a few mistakes in grammar will prevent you from winning her love.

NOT NECESSARY EVERY TIME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About one month ago a young gentleman of twenty-two came to my place of residence to spend the Summer. He paid no direct attention to any of the girls until he met me. He has taken me out sailing and to other places. Last evening he called and oh, Miss Fairfax, I forgot to ask him to call again. I care a great deal for this gentleman and I have every reason to think he cared for me, but what does he think of me now? I never made such a disgraceful mistake before, but when I am with him I forget everything but the thought of his presence. Now, Miss Fairfax, you have helped so many girls, would you not tell me what to do? Would it be proper to write him a note of apology? I do not want him to think, however, that I run after him.

A. B.

IF you have given him one cordial invitation to call that is all that is necessary. If he likes you he will come without further invitation. If, however, you feel very badly, you might write a note inviting him for some special evening. No apology is necessary.

ALL RIGHT

Tom—Here! You've started your note to Burroughs "Dr. Sir." Don't you know that sort of abbreviation is very slovenly?

Dick—No, sir. "Dr." is all right in this case. He owes me money.

To-day's Best Story

DURING army manoeuvres the subject of rifle shooting often cropped up in the officers' mess.

"I'll bet any one here a box of cigars," said Lieutenant A., "that I can fire twenty shots at 200 yards and tell, without waiting for the marker, the result of each one correctly."

"Done!" cried Major B. And the whole mess turned out the next morning to witness the experiment.

The Lieutenant fired.

"Miss!" he announced calmly.

Another shot.

"Miss!" he repeated.

A third shot.

"Miss!"

"Here, hold on-" put in Major B. "What are you trying to do? You're not firing for the target!"

"Of course not!" was the cool response. "I'm firing for those cigars!"

And he got them.

THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM By Gaston Leroux

Copyright, 1908, by Brentano's.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

All Paris was startled by the mystery of "The Yellow Room," in which an attempt had been made to assassinate the beautiful Mlle. Stangerson.

"The Yellow Room" was bolted on the inside and there was no way in which the assassin could escape, yet while Mlle. Stangerson's father and Daddy Jacques, at work in the laboratory of the chateau, near Paris, rushed to the room attracted by two revolver shots, they find Mlle. Stangerson alone, senseless, with a wound in her temple. The window also was fastened on the inside. How did the assassin escape?

Joseph Rouletabille, a reporter for Epoque, a Paris newspaper, is aided in the search for the assailant by Lawyer Sinclair, a friend of Robert Darzac, fiance of Mlle. Stangerson. Their engagement, however, had been broken off two days before the assault.

Frederick Larson, a noted Parisian detective, refuses to give an opinion in the case until all the witnesses have been examined. He declares that Monsieur Stangerson knows the murderer and allowed him to escape.

Larsan works against Rouletabille on the case, and is trying to prove Darzac guilty of the assault.

To explain strange incidents that happen at the chateau one night, during the investigation, the author quotes from Rouletabille's notebook. This relates that the reporter was aroused by a noise and found the corridor door wide open. He sees the muddy prints of a man's shoes on the corridor carpet leading to Mlle. Stangerson's room. He goes to Daddy Jacque's room and finds him dressed. They go outside the chateau and find Mlle. Stangerson's window open.

The reporter secures a ladder. Placing it near the window, he ascends it and sees a man writing at Mlle. Stangerson's desk.

He enters the chateau and awakens Larsan and M. Stangerson, whom he places with Daddy Jacques in the corridor outside Mlle. Stangerson's room.

CHAPTER XVI.

Strange Phenomenon of the Dissociation of Matter.

"I AM again at the window sill," continues Rouletabille, "and once more I raise my head above it. Through an opening in the curtains the arrangement of which has not been changed, I am ready to look, anxious to note the position in which I am going to find the murderer—whether his back will still be turned toward me!—whether he is still seated at the desk writing!

"But perhaps—perhaps—he is no longer there!—Yet how could he have fled?—Was I not in possession of the ladder? I force myself to be cool. I raise my head yet higher. I look—he is still there. I see his monstrous back, deformed by the shadow thrown by the candle.

"He is no longer writing now, and the candle is on the parquet, over which he is bending—a position which serves my purpose.

"I hold my breath. I mount the ladder. I am on the uppermost rung of it, and with my left hand seize hold of the window sill. In this moment of approaching success, I feel my heart beating wildly. I put my revolver between my teeth. A quick spring, and I shall be on the window ledge.

"But—the ladder! I had been obliged to press on it heavily, and my foot had scarcely left it when I felt it swaying beneath me. It grated on the wall and fell. But already my knees were touching the window sill, and, by a movement quick as lightning, I got on to it.

"But the murderer had ben even quicker than I had been. He had heard the grating of the ladder on the wall, and I saw the monstrous back of the man raise itself. I saw his head. Did I really see it? The candle on the parquet lit up his legs only. Above the height of the table the chamber was in darkness.

The Assassin in the Room.

"I saw a man with long hair, a full beard, wild-looking eyes, a pale face, framed in large whiskers—as well as I could distinguish, and, as I think—red in color. I did not know the face.

"That was, in brief, the chief sensation I received from that face in the dim half-light in which I saw it. I did not know it—or, at least, I did not recognize it.

"Now for quick action. It was indeed time for that, for as I was about to place my legs through the window the man had seen me, had bounded to his feet, had sprung—as I foresaw he would—to the door of the ante-chamber, had time to open it, and fled. But I was already behind him, revolver in hand, shouting 'Help!'

"Like an arrow I crossed the room, but noticed a letter on the table as I rushed. I almost came up with the man in the ante-room, for he had lost time in opening the door to the gallery. I flew on wings and in the gallery was but a few feet behind him.

"He had taken, as I supposed he would, the gallery on his right—that is to say, the road he had prepared for his flight. 'Help, Jacques! Help, Larsan!' I cried. He could not escape us! I raised a shout of joy, of savage victory.

"The man reached the intersection of the two galleries hardly two seconds before me for the meeting which I had prepared—the fatal shock which must inevitably take place at that spot! We all rushed to the crossing-place — Monsieur Stangerson and I coming from one end of the right gallery, Daddy Jacques coming from the other end of the same gallery, and Frederic Larsan coming from the 'off-turning' gallery.

The Man Has Vanished!

"The man was not there!

"We looked at each other stupidly and with eyes terrified. The man had vanished like a ghost. Where is he—where is he' we all asked.

"'It is impossible he can have escaped!' I cried, my terror mastered by my anger.

"'I touched him!' exclaimed Frederick Larsan.

"'I felt his breath on my face!' cried Daddy Jacques.

"'Where is he? Where is he?' we all cried.

"We raced like madmen along the two galleries: we visited doors and windows—they were closed, hermetically closed. They had not been opened. Besides, the opening of a door or window by this man whom we were hunting, without our having perceived it, would have been more inexplicable than his disappearance!

"Where is he?—where is he?—He could not have got away by a door or a window, nor by any other way. He could not have passed through our bodies!

"I confess that, for the moment, I felt 'done for.' For the gallery was perfectly lighted, and there was neither trap nor secret door in the walls, nor any sort of hiding place. We moved the chairs and lifted the pictures. Nothing—nothing! We would have looked into a flower pot, if there had been one to look into!"

When this mystery, thanks to Rouletabille, was naturally explained, by the help alone of his masterful mind, we were able to realize the murderer had got away neither by a door, a window, nor the stairs—a fact which the judges would not admit.

CHAPTER XVII.

"MADEMOISELLE STANGERSON appeared at the door of her ante-room," continued Rouletabille's note book. "We were near her door in the gallery where this incredible phenomenon had taken place. There are moments when one feels as if one's brain were about to burst. A bullet in the head, a fracture of the skull, the seat of reason shattered—with only these can I compare the sensation which exhausted and left me void of sense.

"Happily, Mademoiselle Stangerson appeared on the threshold of her ante-room. I saw her, and that helped to relieve my chaotic state of mind. I breathed her—I inhaled the perfume of the lady in black, whom I should never see again. I would have given ten years of my life—half of my life—to see once more the lady in black!

"Alas! I no more meet her but from time to time—and yet!—and yet! how the memory of that perfume— felt by me alone—carries me back to the days of my childhood. It was this sharp reminder from my beloved perfume, of the lady in black, which made me go to her—dressed wholly in white and so pale—so pale and beautiful!—on the threshold of the inexplicable gallery.

"Her beautiful golden hair, gathered into a knot on the back of her neck, left visible the red star on her temple which had so nearly been the cause of her death."

Good Things to Eat.

This is berry time, and the man or woman who does not eat thereof and return thanks is an anomaly, for they are low-priced as well as plentiful.

To be sure, the strawberry is departing, but as it has been here for almost half a year, one should not mourn its going, as in its place are blackberries and blueberries at 20 cents a box, raspberries at 15 cents, currants from 15 to 20 cents, and gooseberies at the same price.

Watermelons bring 50 cents each, pineapples from 15 to 20 cents each, according to the size; peaches 35 cents a dozen, pears 40 cents a dozen, several kinds of California plums from 15 to 20 cents a dozen, oranges from 30 to 75 cents a dozen, cantaloupes $1.50 a dozen.

Eggs Are Going Up.

Eggs are going up, as the hot weather seems to have an effect on the "biddies," and there is a scarcity in the home production, for which 38 cents a dozen is asked.

Capes are 33 cents a dozen, "fresh" 30 cents a dozen, westerns 28 cents a dozen, easterns 30 cents a dozen.

For the best creamery butter one must pay 35 cents a pound, while what is called "good creamery" brings 30 to 32 cents a pound.

In meats there is little change. Lamb is still high, as hindquarters are 22 cents a pound, sides 18 cents a pound, forequarters 12 cents a pound, short chops 35 cents a pound. Racks of mutton are 14 cents a pound, forequarters 11 cents a pound and short chops 28 cents a pound. Veal steaks are 35 cents a pound.

Meats and Poultry.

For sirloin beef, the price asked for roast or steak is 25 cents a pound; rump steak is 33 and 35 cents a pound; fancy brisket 15 cents a pound, and other corned beef 8 and 12 cents a pound.

Pork stuffs are about the same as last week, ham being quoted at 15 cents a pound, bacon from 18 to 20 cents a pound, fresh pork from 15 to 16 cents a pound, salt pork 13 cents a pound.

Poultry also shows no change. Turkeys are 28 and 30 cents a pound, western chickens 28 and 30 cents a pound, native chickens 40 and 45 cents a pound, fowl 20 and 22 cents a pound, ducklings 25 cents a pound, goslings 30 and 32 cents a pound, pigeons $2.50 a dozen, and squabs $3.50 and $4 a dozen.

In the vegetable stalls, green peas may be had at 50 cents a peck, spinach at 20 cents a peck, summer squash 15 cents each, new potatoes 50 cents a peck, and the old ones bring 40 cents a peck.

"Educating" Children

It Is Done in This Way Too Often

We have said that the father or mother who whips a child displays ignorance, or brutality, and more often both. You can take the courage and affection out of a child with a beating. You can't possibly beat anything good INTO a child.

The whole duty of the father and the mother is to set a good example, and try to bring out, by kindness, firmness and CONSISTENCY, the child's good qualities.

This picture illustrates a great truth, unfortunately—the methods of SOME fathers.

There are thousands of such fathers, solemnly, sanctimoniously and hypocritically telling their little boys not to tell lies, whipping them when they do tell lies, and actually setting them a bad example, not only in lying, but in other ways.

The Painter and the Plutocrat

This Gifted Princess Sees No Value in Perpetuating Those Who Only Know How to MAKE MONEY

The Princess Lovoff-Perlaghy is rich and lives in a palace on the Mediterranean Sea.

She is a famous painter of portraits.

Bismarck, Von Moltke, Windhorst, the Kaiser and a hundred other notables of Europe have sat and looked wise or fierce or pleasant before her translating easel.

The Princess is very particular about her subjects.

She does not care to paint the likenesses of women—for reasons that a gallant man would hesitate to state.

And the faces of men do not interest her unless they are the composed and conquering faces of THOSE WHO COUNT.

The Princess has come to America on a voyage of discovery and high artistic enterprise.

She is looking through the land to find among the myriad Americans twenty-five faces that express the highest kind of power.

She wants to put on canvas the visible features of the most creative minds in this country—the MINDS that, more than any others, are MAKING AMERICA.

Now, it is an interesting fact that this Princess-painter, who is following the lead of art and not the lure of money, and who has given her life to the study of character as revealed in human faces—can see NO VESTIGES OF THE HIGHEST KIND OF POWER IN THE FACES OF AMERICAN PLUTOCRATS.

She finds the original and creative minds elsewhere than among the money magnates.

For a beginning of her work she has painted the portrait of Mr. Edwin Markham, the POET.

Her chief aversion is the gentleman who stands at the head of the Oil Trust.

"No money could induce me," says the Princess, "to paint the portrait of Mr. John D. Rockefeller.

"The desire to ACCUMULATE MONEY is NOT a qualification for my list of American notables.

"I do not object to rich men because they are rich.

"The question is, WHAT DO THEY DO WITH THEIR MONEY?

"If they use it SELFISHLY and CRUELLY, their faces are not worth painting."

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE "END SEAT HOG" QUESTION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have read with much interest letters from American readers regarding the so-called "end seat hog." I think that some people who are making such a fuss should sit down and reason with themselves for a moment.

Why is it more unfair to try to obtain a good seat on the trolley cars, than to seek a preferable seat at the theatre or the ball game? If at the theatre or the moving picture shows an early comer gets a good front seat, or an end seat where he has a better view, no one expects him to give his seat to some other member of the audience.

On a Sunday evening you will see people waiting in crowds at the entrance of the moving picture shows, long before the time of opening, in order to get the better seats. Why do not some of those people, who have a grouch, speak of them as "end seat" or "front seat hogs"? Numerous people take pleasure rides on the trolley cars; they, like the better seats, which add to their enjoyment of the ride, and in my opinion, are as justified in so doing as those who seek the better seats to add to their enjoyment of the theatre or ball game, or the sermon in the church.

Therefore, if we use the term "end seat hog" in reference to the patrons of the trolley cars, to be consistent we must use the same term in reference to those who attend the theatre, ball game or church.

J. FRANCIS FLYNN.

THAT "FIVE-FOOT SHELF."

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

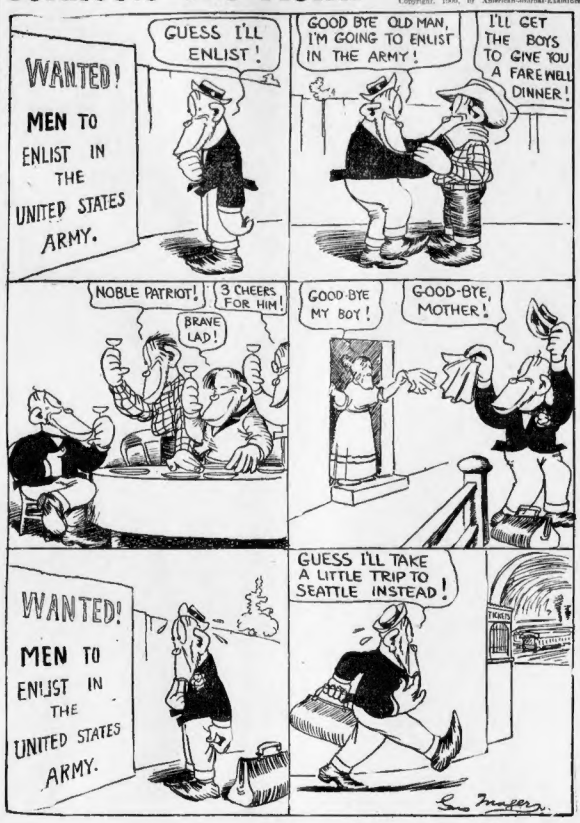

I was much interested in your editorial on ex-President Eliot's choice of books "for a five-foot shelf," in part, perhaps, because I have recently read Stevenson's essay on "Books Which Have Influenced Me." The Americans are termed a "reading public." Therefore it would not, I think, be inconsistent with the culturing attitude that the BOSTON AMERICAN maintains to publish an editorial on books useful to the average young man and woman. Surely, too, the opinion of Mrs. Wilcox, Dr. Parkhurst and of many other well-known contributors would be instructive and otherwise beneficial.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk

PA & Ma & me went orer to Winthrop yesterday. Pa sed that he didnt want to go, but Ma sed that she wanted to go, so Pa went. Ma was looking for a boarding house.

The first (1) place wich we went to was run by a lady naimed Missus Mahoney. She was very tall & had blond hair & blue eyes. She had awful swell clothes. Pa liked her.

We have only one room left, sed Missus Mahoney. It is on the first floar, whare you can git the oshun breezes. That part of it is all right, sed Ma, but we want two (2) rooms, beekaus we have our littel son with us. Never mind that, sed Pa. Let Bobbie sleep on the floar. This seems to be lovly wether wich we are having, sed Pa to Missus Mahoney. I think we will cum here next week, sed Pa.

I dont think we shall, sed Ma. There isent any closet room. I am not dis-posed to be cranky, sed Ma, but I think we better look at sum moar plaices beefore we decide. So we went out of Missus Mahoney's house. Isnt she a dear, sed Pa. She walks in beauty like the night, Pa sed. I dident notis her walk, sed Ma. Ma was kind of mad.

The next plais we calm to was run by a lady naimed Missus Schultz. She was very pritty. Pa liked her, too. I have only one room, already yet, sed Missus Schultz, but it is on the top floor so you can make the window open & get for a fine breeze. Fine, sed Pa, let's talk it. Havent she got fine eyes, wife, sed Pa.

How is the board, sed Ma. My son & myself like plenty of good, solid food. My husband seldom eats. The board is grand, sed Missus Schultz. We have in the morning coffee and sausages. In the evening we have sausages & coffee. Coffee & sausages is my middel naim, sed Pa. How much munny do you want for a deposit?

Wait, sed Ma, we have several moar plaices to look at. I know, sed Pa, but this plais & this lady look pritty good to me. Let us pitch our tents. Let us not, sed Ma. So we went away from Missus Schultzes.

The next plais we went was run by a lady naimed Missus Black. She was awful sweet. She had two (2) dimples on her cheeks. She had a dimpel on her chin, too.

I have two rooms left, sed Missus Black, but one of them is on the top floor & the other is right under it. The room on the top floor wud be vary fine for yure littel son, & you and yure wife cud use the other. By all means, sed Pa, & there is one other thing wich I shud menshun, sed Missus Black, there isent any bathroom, beekaus all the folks goes into the water & swims. That part of it will be all right, wont it? By all means, sed Pa, & we dount serve breakfast after seven in the morning, sed Missus Black. Mosst of our gentelmen friends is bookkeepers & thay have to git to work erly, & thare wives cant afford to set moar than two meels a day. Do you mind that? By no means, said Pa. I rather like it. If you were only a misshunary I wud gladly be a Chink, sed Pa to Missus Black. We will be here next Monday with our trunks, sed Pa.

No, Ma sed. There are three other plaices to look at. So we went to a other plaice, it was run by a awful hoomy woman, a old maid. I am vary sorry, sed this woman, we only have one room, it is a vary small room. That will be all right, sed Ma, we will talk that. I think this is a vary charming plais, sed Ma. I dount see anything charming about it, sed Pa. I can't see it with a pair of field glasses. Look at yonder cockroach, sed Pa. How gaily it gambols.

I think we will cum here, sed Ma. I dount think we will cum here, sed Pa. Let us go cover & see Missus Black. She has the finest major league dimpels wich I have ever seen, sed Pa.

So we went back hoam & I guess we will stay there.
